37th ANNUAL EDITION

From start to finish you'll make real savings with Ansco NEGATIVE/POSITIVE Color

Personnel	No special operators required. Any competent cinematographer can give you excellent results with Ansco Negative/Positive Color.
Equipment	No special equipment required. Ordinary 35mm black-and-white cameras are all you need. And, with minor modifications, your black-and-white processing equipment will turn out fine results.
"On Location" Time	Because you can see color rushes within hours, often the same day, there's no prolonged holding of costly sets and casts while you wait to see the results of shooting.

And You Make All These Savings At No Sacrifice In Screen Quality!

Truer color . . . Excellent screen steadiness . . . Finer Grain . . .
Superior Definition . . . Greater Brilliance and Depth . . .

Ansco Binghamton, N. Y. A Division of General Aniline & Film Corporation. "From Research to Reality."

FOREWORD

IT is 37 years since the first Year Book was published . . . and that is a long, long time, indeed.

The first Year Book in 1918 was paper covered, and its pages were short of the hundred mark.

Today's handsomely bound library volume, with its well above 1,200 pages, and its profuse use of color printing, is in sharp contrast.

YET in essentials, the Year Book of 1918 and that of 1955 are identical. Which is to say that both are dedicated to industry service, and their features were carefully selected to fulfill industry service requirements.

If the 1955 Year Book offers so much more, as it assuredly does, it is because the industry, today expanded many times and global in its development and sway, must have additional facts, additional information, additional references for its guidance and still greater growth.

THESE additional needs receive full recognition in this, the 37th acknowledged premiere reference work of the industry. You will find this reflected in new features and in enlarged sections, particularly those related to the overseas markets now accounting for more than 40 per cent of industry revenue. And, of course, where revision has been required, it has been exhaustively thorough.

Necessarily, the editorial content reflects the collaboration and assistance of many, at home and abroad. To all these contributors and to those editorially associated, once again our appreciation and our thanks.

— JACK ALICOATE

NATIONAL CARBON COMPANY

● Given the best projector carbons made, the "rest" of perfect projection lies in the projectionist's skill and the service rendered by his supplier.

NATIONAL CARBON's nationwide advisory service has featured prominently in every phase of projector-lighting progress from the discovery and development of new and better carbon-arc materials right down to their firing-line application in theatres.

Not only do "National" carbons excell in brilliance, color-balance and uniformity, but they give you all these features at the lowest cost per unit of light and per inch of carbon consumed. Call on "National" carbons and NATIONAL CARBON service for the ultimate in picture quality, at least overall cost.

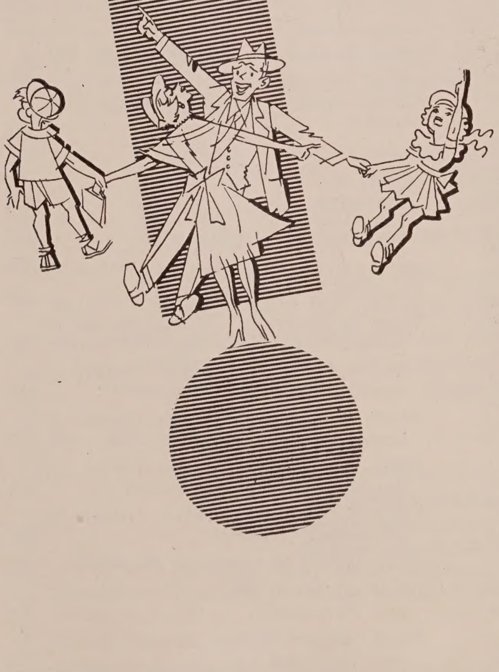
DO THEY KNOW

WHAT'S PLAYING at your theatre



When Dad gives the word that this is the night to go out, do they know what's playing at your theatre?

If the family lines up in front of your boxoffice, it means you've done a lot of that shouting called Showmanship . . . of posting all over town . . . Standees in your lobby . . . Displayaways and Heralds away from theatre . . . and trailers selling every feature on your screen!

the modern taste is for light refreshment

Pepsi-Cola

The Light refreshment

Pepsi-Cola's national advertising appeals to today's figure-conscious women. That's why Pepsi is today more popular than ever. This booming popularity sells more Pepsi in more and more theatres—and at a higher profit to operators in whatever form it's served.

Pepsi profit tops all nationally advertised and nationally available cola syrup lines. Pepsi's syrup price is the lowest of any nationally advertised cola. Add extra profits from Pepsi's extra drinks—128 drinks per gallon, compared with 115 for other comparable colas. In your own theatre operation, Pepsi-Cola can boost your beverage sales and profits all along the line. Write today for full details.

ASCAP

the hits of today and the enduring standards of tomorrow.

production numbers...
hit tunes from the most successful Broadway shows, past and present, and notable Hollywood musical films.

rhythm and blues...
new Latin tempos, favorite blues, syncopation and jazz—all unmistakably American.

folk songs...
work songs, play songs, regional songs, mirroring the history of the American people.

sacred music...
liturgical music, songs of faith, gospel hymns expressing the religious beliefs of Americans.

symphonic and concert works... works of distinguished composers of great classics, daring innovators as well as creators in traditional patterns.

More than 3,900 writers and publishers are constantly adding new works to the extensive ASCAP repertory.

Wherever there's Music . . . there's BMI

Music is heard and enjoyed everywhere and just about all the time. It is hard to imagine what life would be like without music.

It is equally difficult to conceive of any well-balanced program of music without hearing tunes that are licensed for performance through BMI.

For BMI has added immeasurably to the public's enjoyment of music during its 15 years of service to music and broadcasting. BMI, through its affiliated composers and publishers, continues to make available to the world a widely diversified music repertoire—popular, folk, standard, symphonic, operatic, educational—that fills every music need.

BMI-licensed music is heard everywhere, all the time —on radio and TV, in the home, the church, restaurants, night clubs, ballrooms, hotels, skating rinks, amusement parks, concert halls, juke boxes, motion picture theaters and wherever there's music.

Grown to full stature...

in the service
of the industry

Today, the unmistakable symbol of service in the motion picture industry is the ALTEC SERVICE name in a theatre booth.

The personification of this symbol is the ALTEC service man, grown to full and impressive stature by reason of his accomplishments for the benefit of those he serves. These accomplishments have brought ALTEC SERVICE to a position of pre-eminence unequalled in the service field.

Skilled, highly trained, personable, equipped with the finest and latest instruments and tools available, he accords the equipment in your booth the type of service only ALTEC SERVICE can provide.

200 ALTEC service men, attached to company divisions and branches which blanket the United States, stand competent and confident, ready to offer you the skill and experience they now supply to more than 6,000 Altec-serviced theatres.

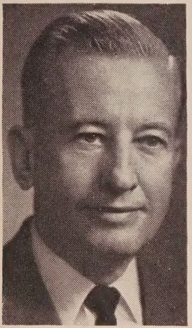
ANNIVERSARY

By ERIC JOHNSTON

President, Motion Picture Association of America

ANNIVERSARIES seem to come a dime a dozen these days but 1955 includes one that calls for some shouting about from the house tops.

I refer, of course, to the 25th anniversary this year of the industry's motion picture production code.



JOHNSTON

The Production Code represents striking evidence that our industry recognizes its obligations and responsibilities to the public.

If that sounds a little old hat, it is. But it needs some solid restating and reemphasis.

Of course it takes no special nobility of aim and purpose for film makers to dedicate themselves to wholesome public interest, to reflect good taste and good judgment. It is in their self-interest to do so.

It is not smart to pander to low taste, for though cheap standards would draw audiences for a while, in the long run movies would fall into general disfavor and freedom of the screen would vanish—and so would audiences.

It is not smart to run to the government for protection. This leads to further official interferences and to retaliation by other governments.

Nor is it smart for governments and pressure groups to censor or pressure their film industries. The price is too high. Motion pictures as a free institution would disappear—and free institutions, under attack everywhere in the world today, are too precious to be undermined.

As a free institution, the screen—and along with it, the Production Code—should be supported and defended. The principle is clear. Free men can remain free only so long as their institutions aer free, and the screen is one of them.

It is this spirit of freedom that the American motion picture industry has completed another year and looks confidently forward to the future.

GREGORY PECK

THE YEAR 1954

An Industry History

By CHESTER B. BAHN
Editor, The Film Daily

BAHN

An objective chronicle and appraisal of the principal developments of the American motion picture industry at home and overseas during the calendar year 1954, with identification of those who by their newsmaking contributions, large and small, qualify as the trade's history-makers.

THE YEAR 1954

I. On Center Stage: CinemaScope

¶ FROM THE STANDPOINT OF IMMEDIATE INDUSTRY IMPACT, 1954 like 1953 was CinemaScope's year.

Both domestically and overseas, the anamorphic lens introduced by 20th-Fox dominated the new process field, and as the year faded, the record stood:

Domestic and Canadian theaters equipped for CinemaScope: 11,000.

Foreign theaters so equipped: 3,000. These include 500 in France, 700 in Italy, 750 in Britain, as many in West Germany, 150 in Sweden and 60 in Spain.

Number of features produced in the Chretien process: 36.

● THERE ARE several challenges ahead for CinemaScope in 1955, however. Paramount, holding steadfastly aloof from CinemaScope, advanced its own process, VistaVision. The first press demonstration was on March 2 in Hollywood, and revealed the system to be flexible and inexpensive, featuring dimensional rather than stereophonic sound. On April 27, there was an impressive Eastern demonstration at Radio City Music Hall.

First picture to be filmed in VistaVision was Irving Berlin's "White Christmas"; technically, it impressed, and at the box office it was a high winner.

For the Radio City Music Hall premiere engagement on Oct. 14, Paramount went beyond the standard VistaVision, utilizing double size frame horizontal projection. The latter, President Barney Balaban said frankly, would be largely for big theaters seeking "Tiffany" images on their screen. That indeed was the result attained at the Music Hall.

Balaban saw the Paramount achievements in VistaVision as "just the beginning." Pointing to new cameras on the way, as well as a new 90° camera lens, the Paramount president envisioned screens as wide as large theaters in the future, playing top pictures for runs lasting six months or longer. He pointed out that excellent screen images already were possible on indoor or outdoor screens as wide as 125 feet.

Paramount is committed to the availability of three types of Vista-Vision prints, the 35 mm., double image horizontal, and anamorphic, the latter squeezed in the 1.5 ratio and thus not compatible with CinemaScope's 2:1 compression ratio.

● A SECOND NEWCOMER in late December was SuperScope, developed by the Tushinsky brothers, the process depending upon laboratory magic for anamorphic prints, made from a regular negative. First SuperScope picture to be released was the Hecht-Lancaster production, "Vera Cruz," distributed through United Artists.

The SuperScope system was demonstrated in New York on March 22; latitude proved to be its highlight.

Another anamorphic newcomer during the year was Panavision, employing the super-panatar lens developed by Robert Gottschalk. First company to adopt the Panavision conversion process was Columbia, which made the announcement in late March.

● STILL TO BE INTRODUCED as the year faded was the Todd-AO process, first publicly demonstrated to the trade in Hollywood on June 22. The demonstration stirred enthusiasm. The first picture to be produced in it, the Rodgers & Hammerstein "Oklahoma!", was completed, with a Spring premiere in prospect.

The Todd-AO process uses one camera and one projector only. For the camera Dr. Brian O'Brien has developed four lenses which cover every shot from an intimate close-up to a distance scenic or panoramic shot. The angle of coverage of these lenses range in size from the huge 128° wide-angle "bugeye" lens, down through the 64, 48 and 37° lenses. Dr. O'Brien has designed a convertible camera which is so constructed that all four Todd-AO lenses can be used interchangeably, thus eliminating the need for additional cameras for each scene set-up.

Todd-AO uses a negative film which is 65mm. wide, giving three and one-half times the photographic area of the standard 35mm. film. The film shown in the theaters will actually be 70mm. wide, to allow for the six-channel stereophonic sound track.

A Todd-AO motion picture is projected from a single projector onto a large curved screen which has an aspect ratio of 2 to 1 and a high reflectance surface. The Todd-AO projector is a "universal" projector, meaning that because of its simple changeover mechanism it can handle the Todd-AO 70mm. film; the Todd-AO film reduced to 35mm.; any wide screen picture produced today in other processes (except Cinerama); or the conventional flat picture.

Dr. O'Brien has also developed a special printer which can reduce the original Todd-AO 65mm. negative to a Todd-AO 35mm. negative, and which can also make 35mm. wide-screen prints for theaters now equipped to show CinemaScope, VistaVision, etc., or conventional flat pictures.

SUSAN HAYWARD

● COMPLETED also during 1955 was the second Cinerama production, "Cinerama Holiday," made in Europe and in the U. S., and shooting was in progress on the third, "Seven Wonders of the World," as the year drew to a close. Meanwhile, "This Is Cinerama," in its third year on Broadway, was continuing to astound with its sustained draw wherever presented.

At the National Theaters convention in Los Angeles in early December, there was a demonstration of mobile Cinerama projection equipment employing mirrors to circumvent the use of three separate projection booths.

● PERHAPS THE MOST significant CinemaScope development of the year came on May 6 when, at an exhibitors forum called to discuss sound, 20th-Fox accepted a resolution urging "that CinemaScope pictures be made available for all theaters which are equipped with the proper screen and anamorphic lenses" and that "exhibitors have the option as to whether they show CinemaScope pictures with full stereophonic sound, single magnetic track or single optical track."

Thus was the CinemaScope sound barrier shattered.

Earlier, in February, 20th-Fox had accepted two-channel sound for drive-ins, and in March, both Metro and Paramount announced the adoption of Perspecta Sound. Warners made the same announcement in April. The Perspecta system was demonstrated at Loew's State in New York on April 15.

Twentieth-Fox made an excellent case for the future of CinemaScope and stereophonic sound, however, on June 22 when at the Roxy it presented a special film before an industry audience. For it, new camera lenses developed by Bausch & Lomb were utilized. There was in evidence an impressive gain in depth of focus plus elimination of distortion.

● THE YEAR brought the announcement of several intriguing new processes. Jack O'Flynn, a New Orleans exhibitor, in early February announced a new camera process called Cyclorama. The O'Flynn system requires a change in the number of frames per second to include single frames photographed in exactly the same proportion in which they then appear on the screen.

In February, too, Professor Josef Cohen, of the University of Illinois, was named as the inventor of a wide screen process which would permit the audience to be surrounded by the picture.

In April, The Film Daily, from Cape Town, South Africa, exclusively reported the development of a method of projecting any picture in 3-D on a single strip of film through the addition of a simple projection lens attachment. The South African device was termed Tru Dimension. April also brought the announcement by Steven E. Garutso of the development of a new multiple source lens, producing a natural 3-D effect on a single negative.

● IN JUNE, Walter Lantz announced the development of a filming process which permits pictures to be projected in any size or ratio screen without any loss of picture.

There were two new processed developments disclosed in August. One was Bi-Oral sound, developed by Michael Myerberg. The other was the 3-D process called Tri-Dim, employing no glasses. Its inventor was Stu Sheldon of Trotwood, O.

Finally, in early December, The Film Daily exclusively reported a new photographic and projection process invented by Frank Caldwell, which involves a camera range in excess of 146 degrees and employs a single camera using a standard 35mm. film. An interesting sidelight was the disclosure that the Caldwell process had come under the wing of Fred D. Gearhart, Jr., a Wall Street broker, who earlier had been an important figure in the Cinerama picture.

● Of other new process developments of the year, these were the more important:

On Jan. 18 Technicolor was licensed under the Polaroid process to make full color 3-D prints on Vectograph raw stock. However, Vectograph itself was still awaiting introduction as 1954 ended.

On Jan. 24, Minnesota Mining and Manufacturing Co. demonstrated a new magnetic tape for films and television in Hollywood.

On Feb. 23, Pola-lite announced a new one-strip 3-D system's availability.

On April 9, The Film Daily exclusively reported that research was underway at New York University seeking an approved 3-D method.

On May 18, 20th-Fox stockholders were informed, by President Spyros P. Skouras, that American exhibitors to date had spent $50 millions for CinemaScope installations and that a similar investment abroad approximated $25 millions.

THE YEAR 1954

II. The International Scene

¶ WHILE THERE WERE OTHER developments more immediately important to the industry dollar-wise, the highlight of 1954, from the long-range international market viewpoint, well might be the action taken by the General Assembly of the International Federation of Film Producers Association at its sessions in Locarno, Switzerland, July 9-11.

The General Assembly adopted this resolution:

"To insure the maximum development on each country of film production as the principal medium of mass communication and mass entertainment, the International Federation of Film Producers Association considers complete freedom in international film trade essential. The Federation, consequently, calls upon its member associations to do everything in their power to reduce and abolish fiscal and quota restrictions on the importation and distribution of foreign films as rapidly as this can be done, without material injury to the essential interests of film production in the country concerned.

"The Federation, at the same time, without prejudice to the essential economic interests of each country, urges its member associations to oppose the creation or maintenance of any barrier to the free negotiation, collective or individual as the case may be, between producers, distributors and exhibitors, of distribution charges, film hire and all other contractual conditions concerned with the exploitation of films.

"The Federation will maintain continuing contact with its member associations with a view to aiding and expediting the achievement of these objectves."

● THE ASSEMBLY ACTED in response to a call for such a move authorized by the Federation's Administrative Council which had met June 10-11 in Stockholm. It represented a distinct victory for MPEA President Eric A. Johnston, whose delegate at both the Sweden and Switzerland meetings was Fayette W. Allport, the association's representative in Great Britain.

The significance of the enunciation of the principle of free film trade by the Federation, with which producer groups in 22 countries are affiliated, is too readily apparent to need detail here.

● FROM THE MONETARY standpoint, the most satisfactory development of the year was the liquidation of Argentina's film remittance obligations under a five-year agreement signed on May 12, 1950. Two involved compensation deals for American scrap metal and a straight $1,000,000 payment brought American distributors approximately $4,000,000. The Peron Government's slow approach to the remittance issue long had nettled.

The two compensation deals yielding $1,070,000 and $1,872,427, respectively, were worked out in Buenos Aires by Robert J. Corkery, MPEA assistant vice president, after the initial spadework had been done there late in 1953 by President Johnston.

Giving an added fillip to the deals, disclosed on Oct. 19, is the fact that the Peron Government not only accounted for the past due remittances, but permitted though the involved compensation deals, the transfer of $2,200,000 in remittances not yet due. In short, the Peron Government has accounted for all remittances up to June 15, 1956.

● THERE WERE A NUMBER of new film agreements negotiated during 1954, but only one proved nettlesome. That was the French accord. The old agreement had expired on June 30. 1953; the new one, back-dated to July 1 of that year and running to June 30. 1955. actuallv was not finalized until late June after a series of irritating delays.

One facet of the new accord, providing for the payment of $400,000 in two equal installments over a two-year period to the French Government, quickly was challenged by the SIMPP as a "subsidy." The MPEA replied, "Not so," explaining that it rather represented a settlement of issues in dispute. For details, see the SIMPP chapter of this review.

Johnston in late June took time off from his Middle East ambassadorial mission to set a new two-year Italian agreement, the most important feature of which was the omission of any subsidy provision. It was the latter's inclusion in the expiring pact which had caused the Independent Motion Picture Distributors of America to in February file a complaint with the Federal Trade Commission. Object of the complaint: To halt distribution of Italian pictures by Italian Films Export.

● IN SEPTEMBER, a British mission visited Washington and quickly reached agreement with the MPEA and the SIMPP on a one year extension of the Anglo-American remittance pact which provided for an increase of $2,250,000 in remittances via the Eady Plan.

In September, too, it was announced that the West German film accord had been extended for one year.

Charles Bickford

THE YEAR 1954

● AMERICAN MAJOR COMPANIES, barred from theater operation in the U. S., turned to overseas during the year. Loew's in May announced it would spend from £4 to £5 millions on 20 theaters in South Africa. Twentieth-Fox shortly thereafter acquired theaters in Bombay, Calcutta and New Delhi in a leasing deal with the Western Indian Theater Co. and in September Murray Silvertone, president of 20th-Fox International, announced the company would build 10 theaters in the Middle East. Later came the news that the company also would build houses in South Africa.

Meanwhile, J. Arthur Rank eyed American theater operation potentialities and in September announced plans to acquire houses—when free convertibility became a fact. Late in the year, John Davis, Rank's managing director, visited Washington and was assured by the Department of Justice there was no legal bar to such an invasion.

● BRAZIL, MEXICO, JAPAN, India, Formosa and Austria—these were the princpal countries where 1954 developments were of American industry concern. In Brazil, the economic and dollars pinch in October caused the Government to postpone payment of the monthly installments on a $5,500,000 indebtedness. A Brazilian print issue was settled by compromise in March. In Mexico, devaluation of the peso in April spelled a loss of $1,500,000 annually to American distributors. And the latter were forced to close their Mexican offices for several days in July when a strike paralyzed the industry there.

In Japan, where a cut was made in the number of import licenses—MPEA member companies were allocated 101 as against 121—there was a further setback as the Finance Ministry revised the monthly remittance formula, resulting in a reduction of about one-third in remittance. In India, censorship remained troublesome, while a high court ruling in Bombay in actions involving Charles S. Chaplin and Universal brought American distributors in danger of an income tax on their Indian film earnings. In Formosa, the Nationalist China Government imposed a film quota.

From Vienna in late October came ominous news: Austria was weighing "voluntary" import restrictions, might also force dubbing domestically by hiking customs duties.

● ON THE PLUS SIDE, however, were other entries. American distributors saved $1,300,000 in Italy when the Government freed the so-called New York share of earnings from the three per cent turnover tax. An agreement negotiated in Indonesia in February presumably cleared the way for remittance of $2,500,000 in American earnings. A hitch developed, however. A new Israeli deal in April permitted the transfer of $50,000 in earnings for the 1954-55 fiscal year; earnings had been blocked. In April also, following energetic MPEA protests, Turkey suspended a 75 per cent ad valorem duty on film imports. In May, American companies resumed limited shipments to Burma. And in July removal of the 20 per cent excise tax on distributor earnings led the companies to resume shipments to Guatemala.

● THESE INTERNATIONAL SCENE developments also rated attention:

The MPEA turned a deaf ear in the Spring to indirect advances from the Soviets for American product.

AB-PT stockholders were advised at their annual May meetings by President Leonard H. Goldenson that he would attempt to stimulate West German production that the American film shortage might be alleviated.

Charges in Britain that Warners dominated Associated British Pictures Corp. were energetically refuted by Chairman Sir Philip Warter in July.

Republic of Korea National Police in July undertook a hunt for 216 missing prints of U. S. features.

Charles Goldsmith was appointed Metro's managing director in Britain, with the distinguished Sam Eckman retaining the chairmanship.

A new $25,000,000 international exchange banking plan to ease foreign remittances was announced in August by Attorney Sol R. Kunkis. The same month saw a first co-production deal signed between American and Yugoslav film interests. Gregory Ratoff was the American, Avala Films of Belgrade the other party.

Republic Pictures took on the distribution of five J. Arthur Rank pictures in October; the following month saw an end to Republic's worldwide distribution deal with Britain's Herbert Wilcox.

JOHN WAYNE

● A VISIT TO NEW YORK in September by an Italian film mission headed by Dr. Eitel Monaco, president of ANICA, assured American distributors more equitable representation in ANICA. And saw Dr. Monaco pressing for co-production deals with American major companies. Paramount in October exercised its option with Rome's Ponti-DeLaurentis Studios, the new deal calling for five high-budgeted features.

In November, President Arthur B. Krim announced that United Artists had established global co-production machinery, and later it was announced the company had renewed its Italian distribution deal with D.E.A.R. Film.

III. Corporate and Executive

¶ THE CORPORATE YEAR was an exciting one, an eventful one. Perhaps the outstanding development was the purchase in late March by Howard R. Hughes of all RKO Pictures assets, including RKO Radio Pictures, for $23,489,478. Hughes, the company's board chairman, made public his surprising offer to stockholders in early February. It was keyed to a proposal to pay $6 per share for all outstanding shares, except his own 1,262,120 shares, offered for redemption. Holders at a special meeting held in Wilmington, Del., on March 18 voted overwhelmingly to accept; only three per cent opposed.

However, minority holders were extremely slow to tender their stock for redemption, and as Atlas Corp. brought its shares up to a 1,200,000 total by open market purchases—meanwhile negotiating with Hughes for purchase of RKO Radio and a RKO Pictures management deal—the price climbed above the $6 tender price. The offer to purchase was extended several times; and expanded to include Hughs' own stock, but redemptions were far too few to accomplish the Hughes purpose. His minority partners in the holding company evidently felt that what was good for Hughes must be good for them as well.

Final deadline for Hughes to exercise his redemption rights was Dec. 15, for all other holders, Dec. 31. Hughes stood pat, and Oldum just as pat, the latter advising that the Atlas Corp.'s stock would be retained. Amid a variety of reports as to what both Hughes and Oldum had in mind, the price of RKO common rose to 8¼ on Dec. 15 and at the year end was quoted at 8⅞.

Meanwhile, one fact stood out: For the first time in industry history, one man was the sole owner of a major producing-distributing company, and that man was a rugged individualist little given to confidences.

● SCARCELY LESS INTERESTING were the developments in the Decca Records-Universal Pictures area. In late February, Maj. George L. Lloyd, ousted as a Decca director, declared a proxy war on the Milton R. Rackmil management, but when the counting of the votes was completed on April 15, Rackmil's group was out ahead, 6 to 1.

Decca during the year strengthened its position in Universal, by a two-for-one stock exchange offer and otherwise, to the end that the picture company became a Decca subsidiary. Then on Nov. 4 came the highly significant disclosure: The Rackmil group had acquired control of more than 500,000 shares of Decca common, placing it in firm control of the record company and, of course, of the subsidiary, Universal Pictures. Underscoring the importance was the announcement that Universal for a second successive year under Rackmil's presidential direction had rolled up a new gross and net high.

● THERE WAS CORPORATION history made by the Fabian-Rosen controlled Stanley Warner Corp. as well. On May 3, it was announced that the theater circuit had acquired International Latex Corp., paying $15,000,000 in cash. There was a further if lesser move towards diversification when S-W acquired a television station in Albany. Then, on July 20, it was announced that S-W had allied with Robin International and Matty Fox to establish Cinerama theaters abroad. The first opening was in London; arrangements for others in Europe and the Far East were either concluded or in work at the year end.

● A FURTHER HIGHLIGHT of the corporate year was the divorcement of Loew's Theaters from Loew's, Inc., in compliance with the terms of a consent decree which ended the Government's antitrust action against the producing-distributing theater operating company. Joseph R. Vogel assumed the presidency of the new theater company, and these officers were named to serve with him: Leopold Friedman, vice-president and treasurer; Harold J. Cleary, vice-president and comptroller; Eugene Picker, vice-president; John Murphy, vice-president; Eliot Rosenthal, secretary; Archie Weltman, assistant secretary; Leonard Pollack, Matt J. Madden and Jacob Stillman, assistant treasurers.

With Grateful Appreciation . . .

FILM DAILY'S 1954 FILMDOM'S FAMOUS FIVES

As Voted By The Nation's Leading Critics
And Commentators

The director and officer realignment of Loew's saw Charles M. Reagan and Benjamin Melniker replacing Vogel and Friedman as directors, with Reagan and Jesse T. Mills elected vice-presidents, Irving H. Greenfield, secretary, and Marvin Atlas, assistant secretary.

The resignation of J. Robert Rubin as vice-president, director and general counsel of Loew's became effective on Aug. 31.

● THERE WERE NUMEROUS other newsworthy developments in the corporate field. The sudden passing from another heart attack of Charles P. Skouras on Oct. 22 vacated the presidencies of National Theaters and Fox West Coast. To fill the former, the choice was Elmer H. Rhoden, long the able administrator of Fox Midwest, while the FWC presidency went to John B. Bertero, veteran vice-president, director and counsel of National Theaters.

Earlier in the year, in late May, Federal Judge Augustus N. Hand of the Statutory Court exercising jurisdiction over the consent decree signed an order permitting National Theaters to invest $1,000,000 in Magna Theaters Corp., controlling the Todd-AO process.

Another corporate development of moment was the abrupt decision by Walt Disney Prods. to break with RKO Radio and distribute its future features through its own subsidiary, Buena Vista Film Distribution Co. This came on Sept. 20.

● A rundown, by companies, of the year's more important corporation developments follows:

Allied Artists stockholders on March 23 approved an increase in capital stock, authorizing 150,000 shares of $10 preferred. Engagement of William F. Rodgers as sales consultant was announced on Sept. 1. In early September, Arthur Greenblatt joined the company as home office special sales representative. In early October, Roy M. Brewer, who had left the company earlier in the year to seek the IATSE presidency, rejoined to head exchange operations, headquartering in New York. In November, the company's directors voted to pay a first cash dividend of 10c on the company's common stock on Jan. 3 to holders of record on Dec. 10.

Columbia on Jan. 7 announced the election of Lee Jaffe and Paul N. Lazarus, Jr., as vice-presidents. On Jan. 21 the company announced that William Goetz Prod., Inc., headed by the former Universal International production chief, had signed to make a series of independent productions for Columbia release. A few days later, it was announced that Joseph J. Nolan had joined the Goetz company as vice-president. On Jan. 24, The Film Daily exclusively reported that Columbia had acquired a 50 per cent interest in its Canadian franchise holder, Columbia Pictures of Canada, Ltd. On the following day, announcement was made that Mortimer Wormser had been named vice-president of Columbia Pictures International. In mid-June, Lacy W. Kastner was appointed executive vice-president of the latter subsidiary. In November, Kastner was elected president succeeding Joseph A. McConville, as the business board chairman. On Sept. 1, the company announced it had negotiated a $50 million five-year loan with the First National Bank of Boston. In October, Nick Pery, Columbia International's managing director for Europe and the Near East was elected vice-president.

November was an active month newswise for Columbia. On Nov. 2, the company announced Harry Cohn had been signed to a new 5-year employment contract with compensation unchanged. The company stockholders approved the contract with a minimum of opposition on Dec. 19. On Nov. 23 Columbia announced the establishment of a $10 million pool for the financing of independent producers. A further financing move was announced on Nov. 16 when the company stated it would finance stage productions both here and abroad. On Nov. 7 the company announced the organization of Columbia Pictures Music Corp. in partnership with Shapiro-Bernstein.

On Nov. 22 the company proposed to its stockholders an increase of common shares from $1 to $2 millions and a $5 par value for the stock then without par. Both proposals were approved by the shareholders in December. On Nov. 23, it was announced that Columbia had acquired all stock rights in the former Stanley Kramer Co. which produced 11 pictures for Columbia, the deal being made with the SGS Co., a holding corporation.

As the year drew to a close, Columbia signed Rita Hayworth to a new contract; it provided for the dissolution of the Beckworth Film Co., which formerly made the Hayworth films for Columbia. In work, as the year ended, was a further Columbia deal for the purchase of Humphrey Bogart's independent company, Santana Pictures.

Loew's, which had held aloof from television, finally entered the TV film field in early January through the purchase by Hearst Metrotone News of Telenews Productions' news film services. In late February, it was disclosed, at the annual stockholders meeting, that Loew's had reduced its contribution to the pension plan by 50 per cent. On March 2, the designation of William F. Rodgers as a director of the company and his retirement as a Metro consultant, to open his own advisory office, was announced. In May, Rodgers was replaced on the board by Howard Dietz, vice-president in charge of advertising, publicity and exploitation. J. Robert

JOEL McCREA

Rubin retired on Aug. 31 as a director, vice-president, and the company's general counsel.

Paramount, in June, reduced its holdings in Famous Players Canadian Corp. to 888,456 shares by the sale of 285,000 shares to citizens of the Dominion. Control of the important Canadian circuit, however, remains safely in Paramount's hands, the company retaining about 51.14 per cent of the stock. Paramount holdings were valued at that time at $21,332,944.

RKO Radio's foreign sales chief, Alfred W. Crown, resigned on Jan. 20 to become president of Moulin Prods. A month later, Walter E. Branson was named general manager for foreign operations and, at the same time, Harry Gittleson was named executive assistant to RKO's general sales manager. On Oct. 18 Branson was appointed general sales manager to succeed Charles Boasberg, who resigned to join Distributors Corporation of America. On Aug. 24 appointment of Herbert H. Greenblatt, as RKO's domestic sales manager, was announced.

Republic minority stockholder objections, at the company's annual meeting on April 11, caused the withdrawal of C. Bruce Newbery as management nominee for the Board and the substitution of Bernard E. Smith, Jr.; the objection was based on the fact that Newbery was not an owner of Republic stock. In November, Newbery ended a long association with Republic to become an executive vice-president of Dudley Pictures Corp. On April 15, Richard Altschuler was appointed Republic worldwide director of sales, it was announced. In mid-August further expansion of Republic Studio facilities, at a cost of $1 million, was announced.

Twentieth-Fox veteran, William J. Kupper resigned as the company's British managing director, and appointment of James F. Pattenson to succeed him was announced on Feb. 24. In early March, the company's board of directors authorized the purchase, for retirement, of up to 100,000 shares of the outstanding common. As March ended, promotion of Arthur Silverstone, from Eastern sales manager to assistant general sales manager, was announced. Named as the new Eastern sales manager was Glen Norris. President Spyros P. Skouras entered a new sphere of activity in mid-April by becoming part owner of the Prudential Steamship Corp. In early June, New York Medical College conferred an honorary degree of Doctor of Humane Letters on the Fox president. The company brought in its second oil well at the studio in late August and its third well as the year neared its close.

Universal announced the appointment of Maurice A. Bergman, as home office studio representative on Jan. 12. The following day came the announcement that Charles J. Feldman, the company's vice-president and sales chief, had been signed to a new five-year contract and that Eugene F. Walsh, vice-president, treasurer and assistant secretary, had been signed to a new three-year contract. Resignation of Cyrils Landau as secretary of United World Films, a Universal subsidiary, was announced in early May. In late July it was announced that Universal would retire debentures in the amount of $2,393,000 on Sept. 1, through refinancing by the First National Bank of Boston. Extension of Vice-President David A. Lipton's employment contract for an additional three years, through 1958, was announced in early August. In October, a similar three-year extension of the contract of Adolph Schimel, vice-president, general counsel and secretary, was announced.

United Artists in late January, announced the election of Robert F. Blumofe as vice-president in charge of West Coast operations. Resignation of Robert M. Lury, as the company's managing director in Japan, was announced on Feb. 7. His successor was Milton Schneiderman.

Warners, on April 18, disclosed the finalization of a deal with Stanley Warner Corp. to produce "Lewis and Clark" in the Cinerama process; production, however, was still to start as the year ended.

● AMONG OTHER INDUSTRY COMPANIES these were the more newsworthy developments:

On Feb. 4 it was announced that Floyd B. Odlum, president of Atlas Corp., and Edward H. Wadewitz had been elected to the board of Walt Disney Prods. Walt Disney, in mid-May, was elected president and board chairman of the new Disneyland, Inc., and subsequently Leonard H. Goldenson disclosed that the AB-PT stock interest in Disneyland approximated 35 per cent and represented a half-million dollar investment.

Albert A. List, RKO Theaters' board chairman, in Feb. transferred 400,000 shares of his common stock holdings in the company to his children. In April, Maj. Leslie E. Thompson, long identified with the circuit, resigned as its director of labor relations. In the same month, RKO Theaters disposed of the Winston Theater, its last Chicago house. In mid-May, RKO Theaters requested stock tenders and announced it was prepared to purchase up to $5 million worth at 6.5 per share. In June the company disclosed that it purchased approximately 500,000 shares and later in the month it extended the tender deadline to July 31. On Sept. 12 election of Dudley G. Layman, as financial vice-president, was announced.

Decca Records, on Jan. 17, offered 145,842 shares of its authorized but unissued capital stock in exchange for Universal outstanding common in the ratio of 2 shares of Decca for 1 of Universal. On Feb. 1 Decca announced it received tenders of Universal common calling for the issuance of all of the 145,842 Decca shares offered. In late May, Decca offered Universal holders 954,454 shares of Decca in exchange for Universal common.

John Joseph resigned as publicity chief of Cinerama Prods. on Jan. 8 to become public relations manager for the Conrad Hilton hotel interests. He was succeeded by Exerett C. Callow in the Cinerama spot. Resignation of Merian C. Cooper from Cinerama Prods. came as September ended. On Dec. 7, at the annual stockholders meeting, Milo J. Sutliff was elected president of Cinerama Prods. to succeed Lowell Thomas.

In late June, Herbert Barnett resigned as executive vice-president of Cinerama, Inc.

Joseph Bernhard, whose death later in the year was to sadden many, joined Stanley Warner Corp. in Jan. as consultant on management relations. In June, Dr. Charles F. McKhann was elected to the Stanley Warner board.

● OTHER CORPORATE AND EXECUTIVE happenings of the year of general industry interest included:

On March 18, it was announced that Max Fellerman had been named vice-president and general manager of Lopert Films. And, as the month ended, appointment of George Shupert as president of the newly organized ABC Film Syndication, Inc. was announced. On April 11, Herbert L. Golden was elected assistant vice-president of the amusement industry group of Bankers Trust Co. And on April 22, Alan May was elected treasurer of National Theaters succeeding the late Henry C. Cox.

On May 4, organization of Amalgamated Prods., Inc. was jointly announced by William F. Rodgers, Sam Dembow, Jack Skirball and Cliff Work. On May 10 election of Malcolm Kingsberg as treasurer and director of Magna Theater Corp., and Frederick Warburg as director, were announced. In mid-April, it was disclosed that control of the Color Corp. of America had passed from the Donner Corp. and Benjamin Smith & Associates. Later in the month, Arthur L. Mayer sold his interest in Mayer and Kingsberg, with the announced purpose of entering foreign production.

In June, Hal Danson replaced Mel Gold as director of advertising, publicity and television for National Screen Service. The month also saw Clinton J. Scollard resign as an executive aide to NSS president, Herman Robbins. Another June development was the engagement, by Selznick Releasing Organization, of Budd Rogers to supervise the rereleasing of their distribution of former Selznick hits.

In early August, Manny Reiner resigned as foreign sales manager of Samuel Goldwn Prods. Other August developments included announcement of the formation of International Affiliates, Inc., with John G. McCarthy at the helm; the resignation of Arthur Greenblatt as general sales manager of Lippert Pictures, and the election of Eugene S. Gregg as president of Westrex to succeed the retiring Frederick W. Bierwirth.

In September Theodore R. Kupferman was named board chairman of Carroll Pictures, Inc., and Philip Reisman joined the newly formed Mike Todd Prods. as president. Other officers of the Todd company were announced as Sidney Shainwald, vice-president; David Sive, secretary; and Louis Bernstein, treasurer.

In October, Carl Leserman resigned as executive vice-president of Telemeter Corp. Edmund J. Baumgarten was elected president of Lippert Pictures. The month also saw Norman Siegel elected vice-president and directorof International Affiliates. Dr. Maurice Nelles resigned as director of the Borg-Warner Corp. central research laboratory, to join Technicolor as director of diversification and research division.

In November, Richard B. Grouse was named division president of Fox-Midwest Theaters. And Milton E. Pickman joined Distributors Corp. of America as executive in charge of production.

In December, Frank Bryan and Louis M. Weber were elected vice-presidents of Skouras Theaters Corp. and Nicholas John Matsoukas appointed national director of advertising, publicity ad exploitation for Magna Theater Corp.

IV. Exhibition: A Year of Unrest

¶ NINETEEN FIFTY-FOUR ws a year of growing unrest and increasing dissatisfaction for exhibition, and this despite the fact that theater grosses mounted and, to a varying degree, film attendance as well.

The theater operator's principal grievances were two: There was a shortage of product . . . and film rentals were too high.

Through The Years,
My Thanks to Many....

The shortage, of course, reflected the well-paying Hollywood trend towards "fewer and better pictures; the level of film rentals in turn primarily reflected that trend.

The two national exhibitor associations came up with several counter-measures. Allied States Association of its February board meeting in Cincinnati, at which Ben Marcus of Milwaukee was elected president, appointed a committee of seven to devise a film company stock buying plan, the object being to assure a voice in production, and pending fulfillment of such a program, Allied determined to foster independent production. In early April, such determination resulted in the so-called Makelim Plan, originated by Hal R. Makelim, which contemplates production of a series of 12 pictures. Exhibition contracts signed in advance would guarantee the costs. Contract solicitation was still under way at the year end.

At its October convention in Milwaukee, National Allied policy took another tack with the approval of a proposed Federal law, skillfully drafted by Abram F. Myers, general counsel and board chairman, designed to regulate interstate commerce in films. The Myers bill provides for enforcement by the Federal Trade Commission. It was framed as the result of action taken by the board at its August meeting in White Sulphur Springs, Va.

However, the convention, which heard advice against enactment from both William F. Rodgers and William C. Gehring, meeting for distribution, in approving the bill, made provision for "an easy out," stipulating that the board could discard it should conditions improve before the Congress convenes in 1955.

● PARENTHETICALLY, prior to the White Sulphur Springs board meeting, an Allied committee comprising Wilbur Snaper, Abram F. Myers, Ben Marcus and Jack Kirsch, conferred in New York with individual sales managers to discuss policies found objectional by Allied members. The committee reported to the board that it had failed to gain "any assurances of a relaxation of the harsh and oppressive selling practices."

● OUT OF MEETINGS of COMPO'S board of directors and executive committee in New York in mid-November came a move, initiated by Al Lichtman, 20th-Fox director of distribution, to convene an industry round table which would permit distribution chiefs and exhibitor representatives ot seek a possible "meeting of the minds" on the points of issue. It is "unfinished business," left over for 1955.

● MEANWHILE, TOO, during the year the closely allied subject of arbitration remained alive, although progress towards a system was slow indeed. In early February, MPAA President Eric A. Johnston again invited representatives of exhibtor associations to meet with the association's National Distributors Committee to make a new try at evolving a system. TOA and regional associations promptly accepted, but in mid-March National Allied declined unless distributors agreed to make rental disputes subject to arbitration. They did not. On May 23, the arbitration conferees convened in New York, and in due course a drafting committee was designated to frame a system.

As the year faded, there were signs that agreement in principle is in sight, and that the arbitration system when, as and if will be complemented by a conciliation setup as well. Indeed, exhibitor interest in the latter was said to be possibly greater than in arbitration.

● THE THEATER OWNERS OF AMERICA at its Chicago conclave in early November elected E. J. Mastin of Columbus, Ga., and laid the foundation for the organization of the Exhibitors Film Financial Group, Inc., to be chartered in Delaware with a $10,000,000 capitalization. This corporation is designed to provide financing for independent producers whose pictures, it was stressed, will be distributed by other than major companies. Temporary officers of the EFFG named were: Sam Pinanski, president; John Rowley, vice-president: Myron Blank, secretary, and L. S. Hamm, treasurer. Stock Participation in the Group is open to all exhibitors, and later may be as well to other industry branches as well as the public.

● THERE WERE other important moves by exhibitor interests to expand production and thus solve the product shortage problem. The most pretentious was that which resulted in the organization of Distributors Corporation of America, the brainchild of Fred Schwartz, president of Century Theaters. Some 45 theater operators, representing 1,005 situations, joined forces with Schwartz, purchasing 10,000 shares of cumulative preferred of $100 par value. As the year faded, Schwartz announced the company had $12,000,000 in available resources, and was considering boosting its capitalization to permit other exhibitors to invest. The DCA goal: Nine features over the next three years.

Charles Boasberg, who left the general sales managership of RKO and Irving Wormser, who quit a Columbia executive post to direct distribution for DCA, disclosed on Dec. 22 that the new company planned to handle sales in 75 per cent of the major markets through the home office, the remainder 25 per cent to be sold under state franchises, supervised by the home office.

● WILLIAM GOLDMAN, Philadelphia theater operator, joined forces with Paul Gregory, producer, to establish Gregory-Goldman Enterprises, Inc. Goldman also figured along with William Zimmerman and William L. Snyder, in the launching of William Films, which in addition to importing foreign pictures, has telepix production plans.

Southern California exhibitors were responsible for the organization of American Releasing Corp., headed by James H. Nicholson; the company, distributing through 28 franchised exchanges, plans a minimum of eight pictures for 1955.

Another exhibitor entry was Howco Prods., formed by Joy N. Houck of New Orleans and Francis White, Jr., of Charlotte. Howco, distributing via states rights, plans four pictures for 1955.

● THERE WERE DIFFERENT APPROACHES by exhibitor interests, too. One was a plan evolved by Walter Reade, Jr., and Frank Kassler of Continental Distributing Co. As outlined in December the plan contemplates exhibitor investment in production overseas, the investors receiving first rights to exhibit the pictures in their bailiwicks as well as participating in the profits.

Parenthetically, others moved in to supply additional needed product. The Hecht-Lancaster Corp., already producing on its own, in late December disclosed it would finance three feature length cartoons, in color, to be made by United Prods. of America. Commercial and TV producers also cast appraising eyes on the theater potential; they included Dudley Pictures Corp., Kling Studios, and others.

● THESE WERE OTHER more newsworthy developments:

Allied Theater Owners of the Gulf States in January named a committee to mediate in bidding situations where one or more of the parties sought a "split-deal" settlement.

In February, the National Drive-In Theaters convention in Cincinnati determined to take its two sound channel complaint to the U. S. Attorney General and ask for new litigation under the consent decrees. February, too, saw Brandt Theaters close the year's biggest deal, acquiring 18 New Jersey houses from the St. Cloud Amusement Corp.

In April, the Wisconsin AITO convention voted to survey film buying practices, and the MPTO of St. Louis, Eastern Missouri, and Southern Illinois changed its name to the Missouri-Illinois Theater Owners.

In May, North Central Allied established a committee to explore the feasibility of the co-operative manufacture of theater equipment. And the Montana Theaters Association became TOA's 28th unit.

● IN JUNE, National Allied turned down an invitation to send a representative to the convention of Britain's CEA. June also saw the Southwest Virginia Exhibitor Association organized. And the same month then TOA President Walter Reade, Jr., made headlines by telling the MPIC in Hollywood that the industry was controlled by distribution, and to overcome in a production-exhibition alliance was in order.

In August, the Colorado Association of Theater Owners was reorganized as the Rocky Mountain COMPO, and National Allied named an emergency committee of 10.

In October, the Midwest Theater Owners Association was formed by Iowa, Minnesota, South Dakota and Nebraska exhibitors to promote harmony between smaller theater owners and companies.

In November, TOA at its annual convention authorized a request to the Department of Justice that divorced theater circuits be permitted to produce and distribute films. The Department was cold.

AB-PT Leonard H. Goldenson, addressing the November convention of the Theater Owners of North and South Carolina proposed "cooperation with producers by creating a liaison between exhibitor and producer to evaluate stories and stars." Hollywood was cold.

V. COMPO: Year of Accomplishment

¶ IT WAS A YEAR of accomplishment for the Council of Motion Picture Organizations, and this despite a few debit entries, notably the withdrawal of the Motion Picture Industry Council of Hollywood from affiliation and the kiss-of-death given an industry group insurance plan by National Allied's disapproval.

THE YEAR 1954

The major achievement was, of course, the tax relief voted by the Congress, summarized hereafter. Had there been no COMPO, it is exceedingly doubtful that the campaign would have been successful.

To COMPO also obviously goes generous credit for the improvement noted during the year in the industry's press relations. A principal instrument employed was the series of "friendly talks" published as page advertisements in Editor & Publisher, newspaper trade weekly. Extremely well written, informative and candid, the "friendly talks" had proven impact, witness friendly editorials appearing in large and small papers across the country.

● ALTHOUGH COMPO'S TRIUMVIRATE—Al Lichtman, Sam Pinanski and Wilbur Snaper—met several times during the year, there was no full-dress meetings of the board of directors and executive committee until Nov. 15 when sessions were held in New York.

The triumvirate was directed to name a committee representing all industry branches to check into the feasibility of a program to widen the film audience. Such program could include two previously advanced projects—one, a COMPO audience poll, the other, a TV "spectacular."

In late May, Robert W. Coyne, the Council's able special counsel, appointed four theater advertising experts to tackle the audience poll question. They were Miss Alice N. Gorham of United Detroit Theaters, Senn Lawler of Fox Midwest, Paul Levi of American Theaters and Ralph W. Russell of the Palace, Canton, O. Contemplated then was a plan for a national audience poll on a monthly, quarterly and annual basis. In June, however, the special committee of theater advertising executives met in New York and recommended instead a national audience poll among 5,000 theaters. It was close to the year-end before the poll plans took on a more definite shape. Meanwhile, some of the committee's proposals, those relating particularly to quarterly television shows and TV coverage of the annual awards, went into the deferred file. Hollywood made it plain it wanted nothing to detract from the Academy Awards telecasts; and from other quarters came demurrers to the obviously heavy telecast overhead.

Under the poll, as projected, audiences in the participating theaters would vote annually on the best picture released during the previous year, the best performances by male and female players and the most promising new young talent of both sexes.

The dirertors voted to refer back to their respective organizations the group insurance plan proposed by COMPO. This action was taken with the understanding that if the organizations reaffirmed their approval of the plan, National Allied would reconsider its opposition to it.

The triumvirate was authorized to set up a committee to study COMPO's proposed liability insurance plan and prepare a report on it.

● THE BOARD and executive committee members decided to keep COMPO's National Tax Campaign committee in existence and placed themselves on record for complete elimination of the admission tax, although it was made plain no "organized aggressive" campaign to that end was contemplated "in the immediate future."

Other meeting action: The Southern California Theater Owners Association was voted representation on the COMPO board. Its spokesman on the directorate will be Harry C. Arthur, Jr. And the executive committee membership was reduced from 15 to 10.

● ON DEC. 11, there was a further meeting in New York, of the committee entrusted with the mapping of plans for the national audience poll. The committee recommended to the COMPO governing trio that the poll be conducted Nov. 24-Dec. 7, 1955, and that pictures released in the year to Nov. 1 be eligible.

● OTHERWISE, a run-down of the COMPO year brings these happenings into focus:

In mid-January, William C. Gehring, 20th-Fox sales executive, was named Al Lichtman's triumvirate alternate. The same month saw Jerry Pickman, Paramount Film Distributing Corp. vice-president, and MPAA Vice-President Kenneth Clark added to the Council's press relations committee. The committee in February elected Harry Mandel, advertising-publicity director of RKO Theaters, chairman, and Harry Goldberg, Stanley Warner advertising-publicity director, vice-chairman. Ernest Emerling, advertising-publicity director of Loew's Theaters, and Gil Golden, advertising manager of Warners, joined the committee in September.

Meeting in January, the triumvirate with the tax campaign in mind, had determined to concentrate on its press relations, deferring Hollywood activity until later. In April, the triumvirate gave attention to the problem of juvenile delinquency and took first steps to end the confusion incident to new technical developments.

In October, in again enlisting industry support of the American Korean Foundation relief program, it was announced that voluntary theater collections under COMPO auspices in 1953 had provided financial support requisite for more than half of the program.

THE YEAR 1954

VI. Upbeat for the MPAA-MPEA

¶ IT WAS AN upbeat year for the Motion Picture Association of America and its two "subsidiaries," the Motion Picture Export Association and the Association of Motion Picture Producers.

And on the threshold of 1955, the outlook was for more of the same.

Eric A. Johnston, their triple president, who in mid-September was signed by the MPAA to a new employment contract extending to Oct. 15, 1961, reportedly at a higher salary, made that plain on his return Dec. 10 from his first visit to the Far East, a month-long mission that took him to Australia, the Philippines and finally Japan.

Allowing for gains in some countries, setbacks in others, said Johnston, the industry could look forward to approximately the same high foreign business in 1955 as in 1954. This, coupled with the rising domestic grosses, could do no other than underline the general upbeat trend.

Johnston's 1954 figures: World theater gross of American pictures, $2,000,000,000 (computed at the official rates of exchange) : gross earnings outside the U. S. of American distributors, from $550,000,000 to $600,000,000; so-called New York share of such earnings, $210,000,000, including $30,000,000 from Canada; actual remittables, $170,000,000 to $175,000,000.

Johnston gave himself a two or three per cent margin of error, either way.

And he made this highly interesting disclosure: "The majority of our earnings abroad are worked out by compensation deals."

A further sidelight on American foreign revenue, Johnston in early October at a Coast press conference noted that the industry's gross outside the U. S. was mounting at the rate of about one per cent yearly.

Incidentally there was another foreign revenue sidelight earlier. In his annual presidential report in May, Johnston saw "a somewhat brighter picture for the industry during the coming year," but at the same time realistically warned that a "backward step in U. S. trade policy or even a failure to continue the liberalization of past years would have direct adverse consequences for the industry in foreign markets."

As for the domestic market, Johnston, holidaying in December in his Spokane home city, estimated the 1954 gain as "probably about 11 per cent," expressed confidence that "the considerable gain" would carry over for 1955.

● IN ADDITION TO his trip to the Far East, Johnston traveled overseas four times during the year, his total globe-trotting mileage approximating 46,000. Add to American travels, and the total would be 70,000. He left on Feb. 18 for South America, visiting Brazil, where he attended the International Film Festival at Sao Paulo, and Argentina. He returned on March 10, but on March 28 was off again for France and Britain. The trip ended on April 5.

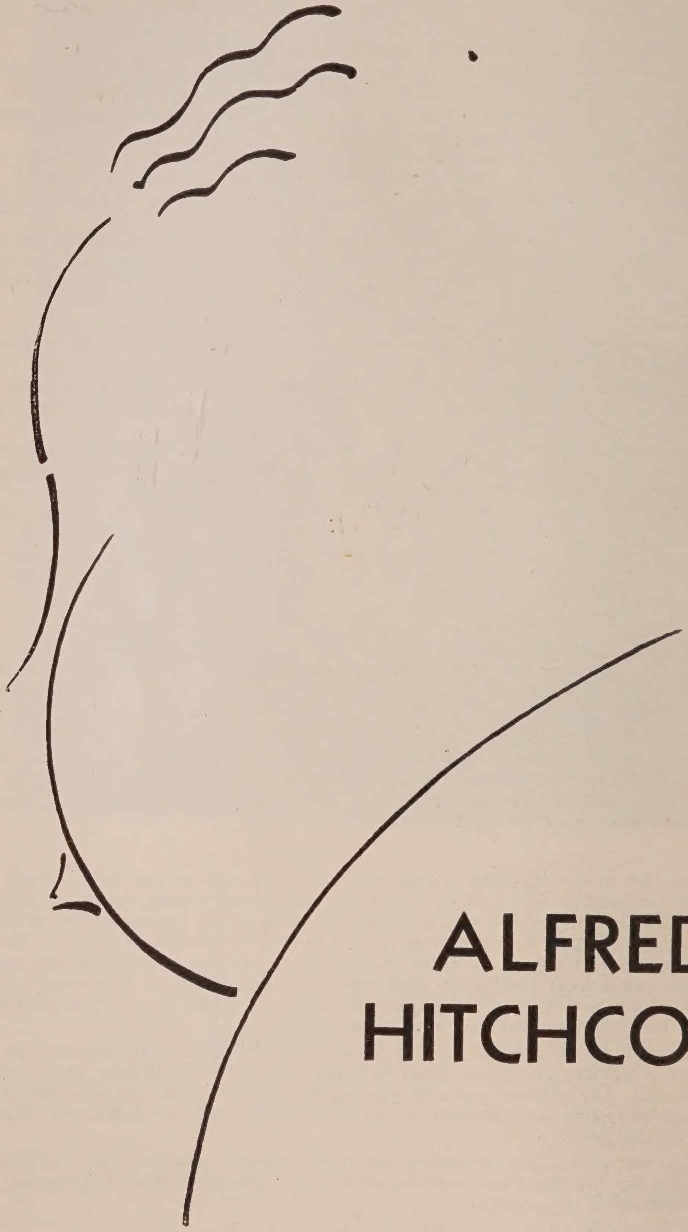
On June 10, Johnston was off once more, his destination, the Middle East, revisited at the request of President Eisenhower. Johnston before he returned on July 4 also traveled to Paris and Rome on industry business. He left again for Europe on Sept. 1, and in 10 days he attended to Association business in Italy, France and Germany.

● OTHERWISE, the more important Association developments of the year would seem to be the return to the membership fold of United Artists, Allied Artists' switch in allegiance to the AMPP from the IMPPA, revision of the Production Code and a change in the helmsman, the veteran administrator Joseph I. Breen retiring to give way to his long-time aide, Geoffrey Shurlock; MPEA disclaimer of foreign subsidies, treated more fully in another section, and the appointment of two new export association field representatives, William E. Palmer in Indonesia and Sid Clifford Agarawala in India, a country viewed by Johnston as a potential $10 to $20 million market for American films at some future time.

Code matters were well to the fore during the Association year, from early January on when the MPAA imposed a $25,000 fine upon RKO for distributing "The French Line" without a Production Code seal. The picture was still playing at the year end, the fine was unpaid and RKO remained an association member in good standing, with no indication that this status soon might be changed.

Executives of eight companies, not including RKO, in February affirmed their allegience to the Production Code, and at the same time expressed their determination to press the fight for the end of governmental censorship.

● THE PRODUCTION AND ADVERTISING CODE and their respective application came in for some criticism during the year. Edward B. Arthur of Fanchon and Marco in



ALFRED HITCHCOCK

January leveled the charge that the PCA practices discrimination among producers "in the same circumstances." In March, Arthur proposed that PCA be expanded to include—among others—representatives of religious groups. The MPAA maintained discreet silence.

It was silent, too, when, also in January, Max E. Youngstein, United Artists vice-president, saw discrimination in the Advertising Code's administration as it relates to "Act of Love." But altered copy brought ACA sanction.

Meanwhile, Wilbur Snaper, National Allied president, urged that exhibitors be given a word in Code matters.

Samuel Goldwyn found himself in disagreement with President Johnston in February, insisting that the latter had promised to call a meeting of Hollywood producers to discuss "necessary" revision of the PC. Johnston denied such a pledge.

In May, sanction of the use of "go to hell" in Columbia's "On the Waterfront"—the association's directors sat as an appeals board—stirred Paramount resentment. Paramount the preceding year had been rebuffed when it similarly appealed from a PCA mandate requiring the deletion of "hell" from "Cease Fire!" dialogue.

● THE MPAA ITSELF adopted a critic's role on several occasions. Vice-President Clark in June charged Lowell Thomas, CBS news commentator, with hitting the industry below the belt in a newscast discussing Ben Hecht's autobiography. In August, the association took the New York State Joint Legislative Committee on Problems of the Aging to task for its report charging Hollywood was sowing prejudice against old age.

In the same month, Johnston was caught in a cross-fire from exhibitors after he told the Omaha Chamber of Commerce that toll TV could bring superior film entertainment to the nation's homes and that it could multiply the television audience "many fold," at the same time permitting the establishment of stations in areas otherwise barren of television. Others, however, regarded the Johnston commentary as a common sense statement of the obvious.

● THE MPAA MANIFESTED a fatherly interest in the organization in New York City in late March of the Federation of Motion Picture Councils, Inc. Named as the first president was Mrs. Max M. Williams, of Royal Oak, Mich.

● ON THE MPEA SIDE, G. Griffith Johnson, vice-president, was designated head of the European Division in September. Theodore Smith of the MPEA "home office" staff resigned; Alfred Corwin of the staff was transferred to Hollywood.

● TWO FOREIGN GOVERNMENTS, Brazil and Italy, bestowed decorations on President Johnston during the year. In March, he received the Southern Cross of Brazil degree of Commander. In June, he was the recipient of the Order of the Republic of Italy degree of Commendatore.

In early October, Johnston was named a member of a group representing American business and finance formed in Washington to study investment possibilities in the peacetime future of atomic energy under the industry participation provisions of the revised Atomic Energy Act.

VII. SIMPP: A Principle Established

¶ FOR THE SOCIETY OF Independent Motion Picture Producers, the year's outstanding achievement paradoxically represented action by its contemporary on the major company side of the fence.

That action was disclosed almost casually by MPEA-MPAA President Eric A. Johnston during the course of a press conference in Hollywood on Oct. 7.

The MPEA board of directors, he remarked, now backed his anti-foreign subsidy position.

Johnston's personal antipathy to such subsidies was no secret. In late January, former Gov. Ellis G. Arnall, SIMPP president, disclosed that he had Johnston's assurance to the effect "there will be no subsidies included in future film negotiations." However, an export association spokesman was quick to question this, pointing out that (1) Johnston could not so broadly commit his board and (2) who could say what the future might make expedient.

The Society's interest—and concern—had been stirred by reports that a new French agreement would reveal a subsidy, and by the fact that a new Italian agreement would be negotiated during the year. The expiring pact contained a subsidy provision, less objectionable than its predecessor.

● THE SUBSIDY QUESTION pot thereafter began to boil merrily, and in late March it was announced by Governor Arnall that the Society would carry its fight against subsidies abroad. Marvin L. Faris, executive secretary, was assigned to visit Rome, Madrid, Frankfort, London and Paris to that end.

In mid-June came the finalization of the new MPEA film agreement with the French Government. It called for a $400,000 payment to the Government with no strings attached as to its usage. The SIMPP saw this payment as a subsidy. Not so, said Johnston at a July press conference in New York. Rather, he said, it was a payment made to settle disputed items. And he asserted that the Society—as well as the State Department—had been kept fully advised during the negotiations.

Meanwhile, the new Italian agreement emerged sans subsidy.

● THE SOCIETY, it quickly became evident, was not reassured.

On July 6, Governor Arnall disclosed that the Society had asked Secretary of State John Foster Dulles to say whether the State Department approved or disapproved of the MPEA's trade practices employed in the new French agreement. On July 13, he revealed that the Society had requested the Federal Trade Commission to investigate the French deal.

In short order, the Society found support from the AFL Film Council in Hollywood and subsequently there were hints that the attention of Congressional committees and the Department of Justice might be directed to the issues raised by the Society.

Then came the historic Johnston announcement that his MPEA directors stood foresquare with him, and Governor Arnall wrote finis by formally advising the FIC on Oct. 21 that the Society's charges against the MPEA were withdrawn.

Parenthetically, on Aug. 9 Johnston had told the Independent Motion Picture Distributors Association of America that the export association had no subsidy commitments abroad and did not intend to enter into such deals in the future despite the fact that it was under considerable pressure.

VIII. Tax Victory and Defeat

¶ SUCCESS ON THE NATIONAL LEVEL, defeat on the local level in New York City—these were the tax fight highlights of 1954.

On the last day of March, President Dwight D. Eisenhower signed into law the measure passed by the Congress which ended the Federal Admission tax through 50 cents and reduced the rate on higher admissions from the long-existing 20 per cent to 10 per cent.

The House on March 10 originally had voted, 411 to 3 for a straight 10 per cent tax, which would have represented a 50 per cent cut. The Senate subsequently, on March 25, voted 76 to 8, to exempt tickets through 60 cents from any tax. On March 29, Senate and House conferees reached an agreement to exempt through 50 cents, with tickets above that figure to a 10 per cent tax, and on the following day both Houses completed legislative action.

In the House, there was a single negative vote on the conference report, cast by Rep. Fred Marshall, D., Minn. Affirmative votes totaled 375. In the Senate, the vote stood 78-8. The negative votes were those of Sens. John S. Cooper, Ky., Everett Dirksen, Ill.; William Langer, N. D.; John J. Williams, Del., all Republicans, and Sens. Harry Byrd, Va., Price Daniels, Tex., Lister Hill, Ala., and Richard B. Russell Ga., all Democrats.

The Council of Motion Picture Organizations, thus triumphant in its campaign for tax relief—a campaign directed by co-chairmen Pat McGee and Col. H. A. Cole and Robert W. Coyne, special counsel—estimated that it placed at the disposal of the nation's theaters $122,250,000 and would free 9,288 theaters—or 51.7 per cent of all houses—from the Federal tax collector's role. The tax relief became effective on April 1.

● SO MUCH FOR VICTORY. On the debit side of the industry's tax ledger, the principal entry is the New York City imposition of a five per cent amusement tax in June, despite the best efforts of exhibition and organized labor to defeat it.

The New York City Council on June 3 set the ball in motion by voting, 22 to 3 for the municipal tax, fixing July 1 as the effective date. The Board of Estimate gave its approval on the 6th, and Mayor Wagner affixed his signature on the 20th.

Aroused exhibition quickly organized a court fight, subsidiaries of Loew's, RKO, Century and Brandt, five Queens theaters taking the role of plaintiffs in litigation instituted in early July. On Aug. 4, the theaters won a partial victory when Justice Nicholas M. Pette in Queens Supreme Court ruled tax breakage collection by the city illegal. In late September, New York Supreme Court Justice Percy Stoddard held the city tax law valid but instructed exhibitors to withhold collections of "breakage" amounts from the city, pending appeal of his ruling. Meanwhile, many additional theaters had intervened in the suit.

HENRY HATHAWAY

● THAT THE ACTION of the nation's largest city—and the "home office" of the industry—should impose a municipal levy in the wake of Federal relief constituted a grave threat to exhibition everywhere was obvious, and COMPO quickly warned its regional and state tax committees to be vigilant and advised theater operators to mend their home town political fences if such were necessary.

The fact that a rally at City Hall in New York attended by 7,500 had failed to halt tax enactment underscored the seriousness of the problem which could confront exhibitors in other localities.

Ominous, too, was the contention by the American Municipal Association that the Congress in revising excise taxes contemplated local admission levies. The association estimated that municipal admissions taxes already were imposed in approximately 1,000 localities.

● THERE WERE TWO DISQUIETING developments late in the year in New York City. City audit of several film companies' books brought more than a hint that the Wagner administration might seek to apply the three per cent sales tax on producer-distributor revenue. And a few days later, The Film Daily exclusively reported that a New York City tax was being imposed on negatives.

Under a ruling issued in September, but first being applied in December, distributors using a negative or fine grain positive to make prints for exhibition anywhere, will pay a levy of three per cent on both the value of the raw stock film and the cost of processing the duplicate negative. Location of the lab, whether in the city, outside of it, or overseas, has no bearing upon the tax.

The impost, which is not levied on positive exhibition prints comes under the three per cent use tax, companion of the sales tax. It has been on the books for years, but never before applied in this manner.

IX. Government and Industry

¶ IN THOSE AREAS WHERE the paths of Government and industry cross, these were the year's most newsworthy developments:

"This is Cinerama" had its overseas premiere, not on a commercial basis, but as the U. S. Government's official exhibit at the International Trade Fair which was held Sept. 2-Oct. 1 in Damascus, Syria.

Presented under USIA sponsorship wholly, it took the play away from the Soviets which had counted strongly upon the exposition as a propaganda showcase. The 3,600-seat theater was jam-packed at every Cinerama performance; it was little wonder that the confounded Reds complained of "unfair competition."

Nor was it surprising that the USIA saw fit to make "This Is Cinerama" the piece de resistance of the American exhibit at a later trade exposition held in Bangkok, Thailand. The Reds themselves attested to the effectiveness of this "secret weapon"—they found it convenient not to exhibit at the fair.

Thus Hollywood entertainment pictures, free of propaganda, demonstrated once again their unestimable value abroad.

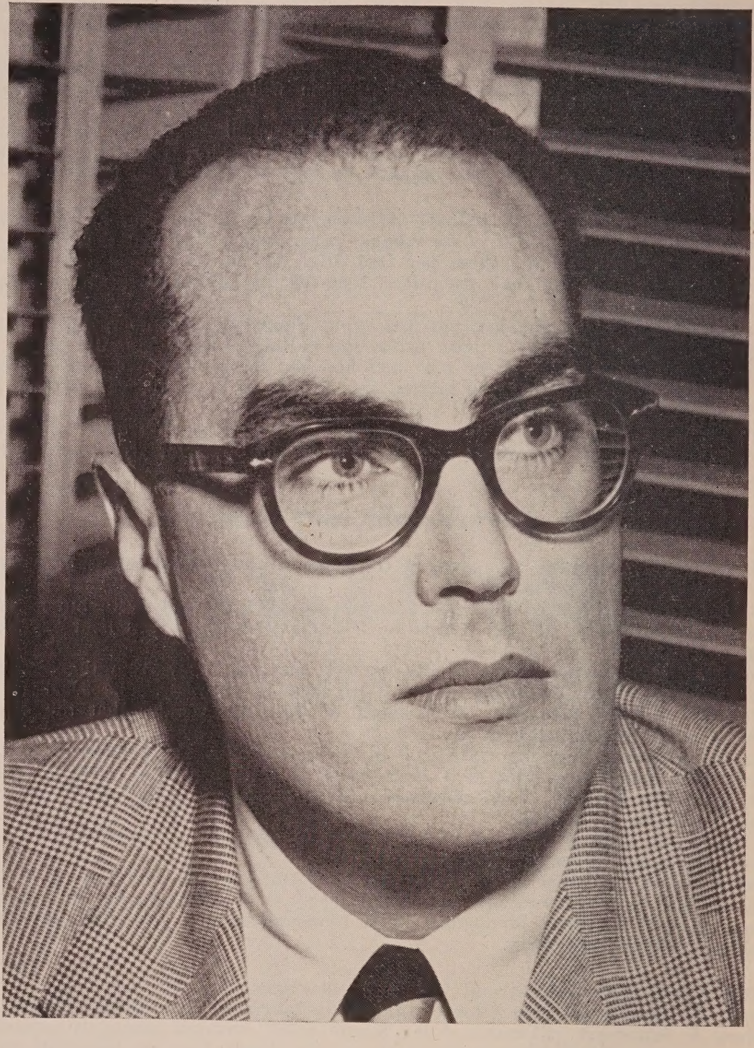
Andrew W. Smith, Jr., chief of the USIA motion picture service, and veteran distribution executive, resigned in early December after about a year in Government service. His successor was Turner B. Shelton, former Monogram, Eagle Lion and Warner executive, who had been appointed deputy chief in January.

● LEGALWISE, there were several interesting developments. The first came on Jan. 12 when Stanley M. Barnes, Assistant Attorney General in charge of the antitrust division, advised Sen. Andrew F. Schoeppel, chairman of the Senate Small Business monopoly sub-committee that the pre-release method of pricing films by the distributor does not constitute the fixing of prices for admission by the parties to a license agreement.

Hence, Barnes said, the pre-release method is a "proper" method by which to determine the film rental to be paid.

The Assistant Attorney General further expressed doubt of any chance of amending the several consent decrees ending the Government's antitrust suit on the basis of the results of their operations.

In late February, Senator Schoeppel asserted his committee had not abandoned its study of industry trade practices. Much later in the year, in October, Albert Hanson, chairman of the trade relations committee of the Southern California Theater Owners, addressed a letter of complaint to Senator Schoeppel. Hanson charged the Schoeppel committee had "refused to listen to testimony or consider anything relative to sales price," and further intimated that the committee had taken a stand on the subject prior to any hearings or investigation.



JOHN STURGES

DIRECTOR

In mid-December, the Senator disclosed he had sent an indignant 3,000-word rejoinder in which such terms as "complete falsehood," "actual misstatements of fact" and "half-truths" were to be noted.

● IN EARLY FEBRUARY, Assistant Attorney General Barnes announced that the Government would prosecute the 16mm. antitrust suit filed on July 22, 1955, and at the year end trial was set to start in Los Angeles on Sept. 16, 1955 before Federal Judge Harry Westover.

● ON MARCH 10, the Government filed suit in Federal Court, Buffalo, citing J. Meyer Schine, Louis B. Schine and John A. May, Elmer Lux, Donald G. Schine and Howard N. Antevil, together with nine corporations, for alleged criminal contempt in connection with the Schine antitrust case. Trial was in progress as the year ended.

In early July, the Department of Justice agreed to changes in the form of Loew's divorcement.

In early December, taking cognizance of AB-PT contention that it was not barred from engaging in production by the Paramount consent decree, a Department of Justice spokesman pointed out that other consent decrees might prevent AB-PT from production financing. Meanwhile, the Department was cool to a National Theaters request that it be permitted to produce some features.

● ON SEPT. 28, a committee of 10 experts, headed by Neil Agnew, and virtually all-industry in its complexion, after a five months' study, called for drastic curtailment in film production by the Army, Navy and Air Force. The report of the committee was transmitted to the secretaries of the three armed forces by MPAA President Eric A. Johnston. In a nutshell, the committee's recommendations envisioned annual savings of $17,000,000. The report found little justification for much of the armed forces' own film production, noted the sufficiency of expert commercial industry facilities.

In mid-February, the Department of Commerce bestowed its silver medal for meritorious service upon Nathan D. Golden, director of the Scientific, Motion Picture and Photographic Products Division of the Business and Defense Services Administration. To say the industry approved would be to phrase it mildly indeed.

X. On the Censorship Front

¶ ON THE CENSORSHIP FRONT during 1954, the major developments were these:

On Jan. 18, the U. S. Supreme Court ruled the New York and Ohio censors exceeded their powers in attempting to ban movies on the basis that they offend against generally accepted morals, or invite commission of crime. The pictures involved were "La Ronde," a French import distributed by Commercial Pictures, which the New York censors had sought to ban, and "M," distributed by Superior Pictures, which had been barred in Ohio.

No opinion accompanied the unanimous order of the high court, which merely cited its decision in "The Miracle" case. However, a minority opinion, written by Associate Justice Robert H. Douglas and concurred in by Associate Justice Hugo Black, de-cried precensorship. The opinion affirmed that censorship of a film, or a radio or TV show, in advance of its public presentation, can no more be upheld as constitutional than could similar treatment of a newspaper or its contents.

Justice Jackson wrote: "In this nation, very writer, actor or producer, no matter what medium of expression he may use, should be freed from the censor."

In time, the industry hoped, the majority would come to the identical viewpoint.

¶ PRINCIPAL CENSORSHIP litigation on the state level was in Ohio, Massachusetts and Pennsylvania.

In Ohio in late March RKO Radio challenged the constitutionality of the state's requirement of prior payment of censorship fees in a petition filed with the Ohio Supreme Court. The censors had ordered the elimination of scenes from "Son of Sinbad." A month later, RKO Radio, the ITO of Ohio and Horace Adams and Martin Smith as individual exhibitors petitioned in Franklin County Common Pleas Court for an injunction which would restrain the censor board from further operations. Among other things, the plaintiffs contended that the censor fees constituted a tax. However, in early August Judge Ralph Bartlett dismissed the action.

A further development came in early December when the Ohio Supreme Court, in appeals cases involving "Son of Sinbad," another RKO release, "The French Line," and "Mom and Dad," distributed by Capitol Enterprises ruled 5 to 2 that further censorship under the existing statute to be "unreasonable and unlawful." By a single vote, the court failed to find the statute unconstitutional.

● BUT OHIO procensorship forces took heart; Gov. Frank J. Lausche said frankly a film censorship law was a "must," and announced necessary legislation to meet constitutional requirements would be introduced at the 1955 session of the State Legislature.

Meanwhile, R. M. Eyman, who succeeded Dr. Clyde Hissong as censor chief following the doctor's resignation in mid-June, suggested that distributors submit their pictures for censorship on a voluntary basis.

Censors, it seems, are like old soldiers—they never die.

● THE OHIO INDUSTRY was well aware that the situation held some danger. Robert Wile, executive secretary of the Ohio ITO, addressed this timely warning to his membership:

"Indubitably, some quickie producers trying to make a fast buck will attempt to flood the state with burlesque pictures, peep shows, sex films and what-not. Screen every picture of this type before you buy it.

"You may be subject to arrest, fine and imprisonment under Sections 2905.35 and 2905.40 of the Revised Code if you show a picture which is lewd, indecent, immoral, etc. These sections were never enforced during the period of censorship. THEY WILL BE NOW.

"Furthermore, if your competitor tries to show one of these pictures, report it to the police and prosecuting attorney immediately pointing out these sections of the Code. This is to protect you and the vast majority of exhibitors all over the state. If we police ourselves, as exhibitors in the 42 other censor-free states do, there will be no outcry against our industry."

● IN PENNSYLVANIA, Presiding Judge Edwin O. Lewis of the Court of Common Pleas, Philadelphia, in a late September decision stripped the state censor board of most of its powers. This forward step came as Judge Lewis ruled in an action brought by Hallmark Prods. in behalf of "She Shoulda Said No."

In Massachusetts, a three-pronged attack on censorship was initiated in late August by RKO Radio; it was occasioned by its difficulties with "The French Line," probably the most controversial picture of the year. One suit filed in Federal Court was directed against State Commissioner of Public Safety Otis M. Whitney and Mayor John B. Hynes, and assailed the Sunday law.

The statute under attack authorizes the Commissioner and the Mayor to grant Sunday licenses "in keeping with the character of the day and not inconsistent with the due observance thereof." RKO charges the wording is vague and indefinite, and a violation of freedom of speech.

A second suit was directed against Arthur Frawley, mayor of Lynn, Mass., who, had forced the withdrawal of "The French Line" after the first day of its showing in the Capitol Theater, under a statute purporting to give him authority to revoke an exhibitor's license "at pleasure."

The third complaint named Mayor Hynes, Boston Police Commissioner Thomas F. Sullivan, and Daniel Sargent, a member of the Art Commission, who make up the censorship board for Boston, with power to revoke or suspend a theater license on the grounds of morality or decency. This board refused to approve "The French Line" for showings in Boston.

In all three cases the complaints charge violation of freedom of speech in that all censorship of motion pictures is unconstitutional, and that the standards for the censors are too vague and indefinite to serve as constitutional guides for their decisions.

A three-judge court heard argument on RKO's application for a preliminary injunction on Nov. 24.

● A SECOND court attack on the Sunday law was filed in early September in Middlesex Superior Court by Brattle Films, Inc., operating the Brattle Theater, Cambridge, and others, and followed refusal of a license for Sunday exhibition of "Miss Julie." In late November, the state won a round when Judge Cahill sustained a demurrer filed by Massachusetts Attorney General George Fingold, who contended the Brattle petition was insufficient as a matter of law. The plaintiff, however, was given the right to amend.

● THE SERIES OF COURT DEFEATS suffered by political censorship were considered on Jan. 21-22 by members of the censor boards of New York, Virginia, Pennsylvania, Maryland, Kansas and Ohio at a New York City meeting. In a statement at its close, the censors reaffirming "our determination to continue to bar objectionable films in terms of our respective state laws," said:

1—"We are agreed that the United States Supreme Court has upheld the constitutional rights of the states to exercise pre-regulation of motion pictures."

2—"We do feel that our basic fundamental purpose is in no way weakened by the recent decisions of the United States Supreme Court."

3—"Since the recent decisions of the United States Supreme Court have made the public increasingly conscious of the problems of pre-regulation of motion pictures, we welcome the interest and support of all those who concur in our objectives."

● SUBSEQUENTLY, in New York a Joint Legislative Committee to Study the Effect on Minors of Radio, Television, Picture Magazines and Pocket Books took a gratuitious slap at motion pictures, calling in its report "for new and more rigid censorship."

On March 20, the New York State Senate completed legislative action on the Brydges-FitzPatrick measure designed to materially tighten the censorship statutes, weakened by the Supreme Court decisions. On April 12, Gov. Thomas E. Dewey affixed his signature.

● ELSEWHERE, there were these developments:

In Stockton, Calif., City Manager John C. Lilly named a three-member film censorship committee in early February. In Baltimore in late April, the City Council adopted a resolution advising "stronger and more effective" state censorship. But Gov. Theodore R. McKeldin, Jr., of Maryland in late May announced his opposition to censorship. In late May, too, the Illinois Supreme Court held the Chicago censorship ordinance constitutional. The American Civil Liberties Union asked for a rehearing. The case involved "The Miracle." In June, a new law increased the powers of Seattle censors. Dr. Clyde Hissong, Ohio's censor chief, filed his resignation in June. The post in September went to R. M. Eyman. In July, a district court decision in a case involving "The Moon Is Blue," held Kansas film censorship unconstitutional. The state announced an appeal.

Early August saw the Connecticut State Police Association approve a resolution urging passage of state censorship legislation. And in late December the Harlan, Ky. City Council gave preliminary approval to an ordinance creating a censor authority; the Harlan censor board would be first in state.

● THE VAGARIES OF THE CENSORS were well illustrated by several of the year's decisions. "The French Line," a target in other areas, was passed without a single cut by Chicago's police censors. After 10 months' consideration, Detroit police censors finally in mid-April passed "The Moon Is Blue" without a cut. The first Unitarian Church of Memphis defied Censor Chairman Lloyd Binford and on a Sunday night showed Charlie Chaplin's ancient "Carmen." Censor Binford, who had threatened arrests, conveniently changed his mind.

Dr. Hugh M. Flick, New York State's enlightened censor chief, reversed a decision, made in his absence, which denied a state permit to Walt Disney's "The Vanishing Prairie." And in Baltimore, Judge James K. Cullen reversed the Maryland censors, directing approval of "On the Waterfront," sans deletions.

XI. Video: A Strange Paradox

¶ IN THE AREA of television in 1954, there was in evidence a strange paradox.

Theater television, already a proven operation, was largely somnolescent; the best that its proponents could offer the public were two ring appearances by Rocky Marciano and Ezzard Charles, one in June, the other in September, and the Nov. 8 opening "gala" of the Metropolitan Opera. All three were booked by Theater Network Television.

Sixty-one theaters in 45 cities across the country carried the first Marciano-Charles meeting on June 17 for the world's heavyweight championship. The rematch on Sept. 20 increased the number of theaters to 71 in 50 cities. No accurate figures on attendance and grosses were available.

That applied as well to the Metropolitan Opera telecast, which, according to the A T & T was piped to 25 theaters in 23 cities. The TNT contract with the Metropolitan for opening night telecasts extends through 1956.

● BUT IF THERE WAS little exciting, for one reason or another in theater television, on the other side of the fence, toll TV, there was a flurry of action, none of its conclusive, but all designed toward that end.

The major moves were by Zenith Radio Corp., developer of Phonevision, and Skiatron Electronics & Television Corp., creator of Subscriber-Vision.

In late March, Matty Fox, co-owner of United Artists, and head of Motion Pictures for Television, Inc., acquired world-wide rights for 99 years to Skiatron's system, the deal later being overwhelmingly approved by Skiatron's stockholders. Fox subsequently organized Skiatron TV, Inc., which in mid-September filed a subscription TV petition with the Federal Communications Commission. Skiatron proposed that the system be limited to UHF stations only.

● ZENITH in mid-June filed a statement with the Senate subcommittee on Communications declaring—among other things—that "as long as the networks remain the only prime source of good programs, there never will be a nation-wide competitive system of TV broadcasting in this country regardless of the number of networks in operation."

Earlier, in April the company headed by Comdr. Eugene F. McDonald, Jr., in association with WOR-TV requested FCC permission for Phonevision field tests in the New York metropolitan area. The request was granted, and the tests successfully completed in early June ahead of schedule.

There were two important further Zenith moves later. On Nov. 3, it was disclosed that a franchise contract for Phonevision covering Australia and New Zealand had been executed with Rola of Australia, a leading electronics manufacturer. And as November ended, Zenith filed a substitute petition with the FCC designed to expedite Commission action, avoid extended hearings.

● MEANWHILE, EXHIBITION, alarmed at the situation developing, had moved quietly to organize in opposition. On Oct. 19, the story broke. It was disclosed that a Joint Committee on Toll TV, representing national and regional exhibitor organizations, had been organized with Trueman T. Rembusch and Alfred Starr as co-chairmen, and it quickly became evident that the committee was prepared to move resolutely to kill off toll TV, one way or another.

On Dec. 9, in New York, the Joint Committee announced that it had engaged the Washington law firm of Marks & Cohn as counsel, that it planned a drive to enlist public support, and that it would file a protest with the FCC. On Dec. 17, counsel for the Joint Committee requested the Commission to defer any action on the Zenith petition until the committee had filed its comments -"so that full consideration may be given to all viewpoints."

● THE FILM DAILY exclusively on Dec. 17 disclosed that the Senate Judiciary Committee, under Democratic control, with Sen. Harley Kilgore, W. Va., as chairman, would immediately investigate toll TV, the inquiry to be steered by Howard L. Chernoff, widely known in newspaper and broadcasting circles and a Peabody Award winner.

A sharp division in the industry on the issue was readily apparent. There were those, such as Paul MacNamara, vice-president of International Telemeter, and Herbert Barnett, SMPTE president, who hold that exhibitors well might ally with toll TV interests. And casting light upon Hollywood's thinking, there was the assertion by Julian Blaustein that 85 per cent of the Screen Producers Guild members favored toll TV.

● OTHERWISE, the two outstanding developments of the TV year as it touches upon this industry were the Walt Disney long-term contract signed in early April with AB-PT calling for the famed cartoon producer to provide a minimum of 26 hour-long video programs and the U. S. Supreme Court October action which opened the way for Republic to sell 138 old Gene Autry and Roy Rogers Westerns for TV exhibition. President Herbert J. Yates earlier had estimated the pictures would return from $3 to $4 millions.

● SPYROS P. SKOURAS, returning from Europe late in the year, assured that Eidophor, in CinemaScope dimensions, definitely would be available for theaters in 1956, might even be ready in late 1955. General Electric throughout the year at its Syracuse Electronics Park pressed engineering work on the Swiss large-screen theater TV system.

XII. The Legal Firing Line

¶ AS THE INDUSTRY TURNED ANEW to consideration of arbitration and conciliation as possible alternatives to legal warfare between distribution and exhibition, there was a measure of trade satisfaction in the fact that the number of antitrust suits filed during the year was sharply below the figure for 1953.

And there was satisfaction, too, in the further fact that a surprisingly large number of such suits filed by theater operators were settled.

During the year, 38 new antitrust complaints seeking single or trebled damages were filed; damages demanded in the aggregate were $55,349,000. Nearly half were brought in New York Federal Court, with damages asked slightly above $25,000,000 in the aggregate. In 1953, the number of suits instituted was 67, and the plaintiffs sought a record $248,074,460 in 59 of the 67.

Suits settled out of court during the year totaled 55, of which 37 had been filed by Chicago area exhibitors. Plaintiffs who filed the 55 had sought to recover $40,623,465 in damages.

Four suits were otherwise dismissed; they had asked a total of $5,125,000 in damages.

In 1953, suits settled out of court numbered only 19, and six were otherwise dismissed.

● FOUR ANTITRUST ACTIONS went to trial during the year. In one case, the jury recommended a $20,000 award, and in another, the plaintiffs received a $2,406,602 award, in a third case, where $900,000 balm was asked the defendants won a directed verdict. And in a fourth, where damages sought reached $9,450,000, a mistrial was declared.

In 1953, when four cases were tried, the plaintiffs lost in each instance.

The suit asking the year's largest damage figure was that filed in Federal Court, in late November by Jean C. Campopiano, operating the Capitol Theater, Lawrence, Mass. It demanded $10,000,000. The runner up litigation from the damages standpoint was instituted in New York Federal Court on Jan. 10. The Harlem and Star Theaters, Manhattan, sued for $7,500,000.

● UNUSUAL IMPORTANCE attaches to another litigation filed in November by drive-in theater operators in Pennsylvania and in West Virginia.

The Pittsburgh South Park, the East McKeesport Blue Dell and the Kittanning Community Drive-ins on Nov. 4 filed individual actions in Pittsburgh Federal Court for aggregate damages of $4,575,000. What distinguished the suit was that in addition to the producing-distributing companies and circuits named as defendants, there were listed 44 co-conspirators, including the MPAA; the charge against the co-conspirators—they acquiesced in the conspiracy. Further setting the actions apart was the listing of damages to concessions as well as the theater.

A few days later Lasky Bros. of West Virginia, Inc., operating the Starlite Drive-in at Fairmont, W. Va., brought an action early in November in New York Federal Court on behalf of itself and all drive-ins. The suit charged that there exists a national conspiracy against drive-ins involving runs, clearances, prices and playdates. On its own behalf plaintiff corporation asked $450,000 damages.

● ASIDE FOM THE CONVENTIONAL theater antitrust suits dismissed during 1954, there were two important actions whose disposition rates attention.

On May 3, Federal Judge Augustus N. Hand in New York dismissed after a two-hour hearing the $15,000,000 suit brought by Chesapeake Industries against RKO Theaters, Loew's and a number of distributors. The court initially dismissed the distributor defendants, then on motion granted summary judgment for the others, on the basis of the 1953 release from damage claims to United Artists and Eagle Lion Classics, the release being related to the sale of ELC assets to UA. Chesapeake in mid-June served notice of appeal.

In late September, the $8,750,000 antitrust suit filed in Detroit Federal Court in August, 1948 by the SIMPP of its members against United Detroit Theaters, Cooperative Theaters of Michigan, and others, was discontinued, following out of court settlement. The terms of the latter were not announced, but termed "very satisfactory" by the Society's president, Gov. Ellis G. Arnall.

● ANOTHER IMPORTANT DISMISSAL of the year outside the antitrust orbit took place in Superior Court, Los Angeles, on July 12. The action for $51,750,000 damages was filed by 23 film stars and writers, who alleged they had been blacklisted because of their appearances before the House Un-American Activities Committee two years ago. The 24-page opinion by Superior Judge Ellsworth Meyer held that the complaint failed to state sufficient facts. Studios, production companies and executives, the MPAA and SIMPP and nine members of the House committee were defendants. On Oct. 19, the plaintiffs appealed to the California District Court of Appeals.

● SIGNIFICANTLY, too, the U. S. Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals in San Francisco in November ruled that contempt of Congress is dismissal grounds, under the so-called morals clause of studio contracts. The ruling came as the court reversed award of damages by the lower trial court in Los Angeles to Ring Lardner, Jr. Thus in effect the court upheld the MPAA-SIMPP historic action in November, 1947, in decreeing the termination of employment of the so-called "Hollywood Unfriendly 10."

The Circuit Court, holding that the Los Angeles trial court had erred in 1952 when it refused to admit in evidence the conviction of Lardner, for contempt of the Congress, accordingly reversed the lower court's award of $25,789 to the screenwriter as back pay from 20th-Fox.

The studio had discharged him on Nov. 28, 1947, for claiming the protection of the Fifth Amendment when faced with questions regarding Communist affiliation. The Circuit Court declared that such a condition was deemed legally as constituting moral turpitude and was therefore valid ground for discharging Lardner inasmuch as his contract contained a good conduct clause.

Lardner, in his suit, which was tried before Federal Judge Ben Harrison, asked $20,000 damages, contending that the so-called morality clause in his contract did not extend to political action.

A similar suit, brought by Adrian Scott against RKO Radio, for $70,000 damages, was heard at the same time. The jury found for Scott as well. Original damage claims in the two cases aggregated $1,000,000 but were scaled down later to $20,000 and $70,000.

Both Fox and RKO had refrained from participating in out-of-court settlements of litigation instituted by "the 10" against companies.

● THE U. S. SUPREME COURT during the year gave attention to several trade cases. In early January, it ruled in the Baltimore Crest Theater case that evidence of parallel business practice is not sufficient to prove companies violate antitrust laws. In February, the high court found that the Partmar Corp., Los Angeles, had no grounds for its damage claim against Paramount. In April, Loew's and 20th-Fox appealed to the Supreme Court to rule that consent judgments in the Government's Paramount suit are not admissable as evidence against distributors in private antitrust litigation. In July, the Bryn Mawr Theater, Philadelphia, appealed the dismissal of its antitrust action. The state of Indiana in September appealed to the high bench from an Indiana Supreme Court ruling that film rental income received by a Chicago exchange from Northern Indiana exhibitors is not subject to the state's gross income tax.

● OTHER LITIGATION MATTERS of moment during the year included:

The U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals in Denver in January affirmed the $300,000 jury award to the Cinema Amusement Co., operating Denver's Broadway. In May, Loew's RKO and 20th-Fox asked the Supreme Court to set aside the affirmation. The high court refused. The suit, filed in 1952, was for $1,000,000.

A unique attempt by counsel for a North Carolina exhibitor defendant in six percentage fraud actions to invoke the Fifth Amendment was ruled out in February by Federal Judge Johnson J. Hayes, sitting in Greenboro, S. C., in February, too, 20th-Fox filed a $2,000,000 suit against Marlon Brando, charging a contractual violation of his company commitment to appear in "The Egyptian."

Federal Judge W. A. Campbell, sitting in Chicago in March, reversed a recommendation of the master in chancery to take 200 shares of stock in the Milwaukee Towne Theater from United Artists and turn them over to the theater company.

The U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals in Philadelphia in late March affirmed the dismissal of the Lawlor and Pantzer antitrust suit against National Screen Service, et al. The plaintiffs appealed to the U. S. Supreme Court.

The U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals in Chicago in early April ruled that Illinois' two-year statute of limitation applied to the antitrust suit filed by the Sun Theater, Wheaton, Ill.

In April also the U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals in Philadelphia upheld a U. S. tax court decision holding that William Goldman Theaters was not required to pay Federal income taxes on $250,000 received in 1948 as punitive damages in an antitrust suit.

● AN EXTREMELY IMPORTANT DECISION came on May 2 in the U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals in New York which reversed a trial court dismissal of the action brought by J. J. Theaters, Inc. and the Luxor Group, Inc., against 20th-Fox and Skouras Theaters. The Circuit Court found in essence:

Even if theaters are in competition, a distributor has no right to discriminate and conspire so as to give clearance to one theater, and:

If theaters are in competition, if one wants clearance removed, it is not necessary for the theater to ask for competitive bidding to adjust the situation.

Another important May decision was that of Federal Judge Harry C. Westover who ruled in Los Angeles that the 1949 consent decree in the Paramount antitrust suit was a stopgap measure, and that accordingly the Government's action was pending during the 1940-50 period—hence the statute of limitations failed to apply during that period.

● IN JUNE, Pathe Laboratories filed a complaint against Technicolor with the Federal Trade Commission. The following month, Pathe filed a $400,000 damage action against Technicolor and De Luxe Laboratories, charging violations of the Lanham and Sherman Acts.

In October, Image and Sound Service Co., Boston, brought antitrust suits against Altec and RCA; damages, before trebling, asked in each suit exceeded $1,750,000.

The U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals in New Orleans the same month reversed the $490,000 judgment against seven majors awarded in 1951 to the Center Theater, Greenville, Miss., and also in October Ray Heindorf, Warner Bros. musical director, filed a unique $200,000 damage suit in Los Angeles against the studio and the Screen Directors Guild, alleging he had been deprived of screen credits because of the Guild's master contract reserving director credit for its members.

XIII. Labor: Enter, the Pension Plan

¶ IN THE FIELD of motion picture labor, the year's outstanding development unquestionably was an agreement with management on the industry's first pension plan.

Announced on Oct. 4, the plan, fruit of year-long negotiations, involves more than 40 unions and guilds and 200 employers and extends coverage to 18,000 studio employes. It became effective on Oct. 24.

Open to all employers in the film and allied industries, it specifically includes member companies of the AMPP, the SIMPP, the Independent Motion Picture Producers Association and the Alliance of Television Film Producers. Designated workers not covered by union contracts may be brought under the plan by employers as well as all employees covered by such contracts.

Employe participation is on an elective basis. Both employes and employers will contribute alike to the pension fund, each paying in 2 cents for every "straight-time" hour of work, beginning Oct. 24. The employers, agreed, however, to make a supplemental contribution, retroactive to Oct. 26, 1953. It is estimated the pension fund will receive $1,000,000 annually. Estimated annual cost to employers is a minimum $500,000.

Jan. 1, 1960, was set as the date for "the first possible pension payment." Monthly payments were set at $20, but the announcement said the directors "may change this amount when sound actuarial evaluation of the fund permits."

To be eligible, an individual must be 65 years old; have worked "a minimum of 20,000 hours and 20 'qualified' years in the industry." Also, except in case of disability, "the employe must work at least three qualified years in any five-year period after reaching the age of 60."

A qualified year was described as one in which an individual worked a minimum of 400 straight-time hours.

● ANOTHER important development of labor's year was the merger of screen, radio and television writers organizations into the Writers Guild of America, with branches in the East and West. The Screen Writers Guild acted affirmatively on the proposal in mid-May, but it was mid-November before the formalities had been completed.

A constitutional amendment designed to ban from membership in the WGA, Communists and those invoking the Fifth Amendment when summoned before a Congressional investigating committee was defeated in December by the narrow margin of three votes. Re-submission in 1955 was certain.

Newsworthy, too, was the attempt made by IATSE dissidents to unseat Richard F. Walsh as president at the Alliance's convention in Cincinnati in August. Walsh's opponent was Roy M. Brewer, who led the fight to stem the Red invasion of the studios. Brewer resigned his Hollywood IATSE post in 1953 after a disagreement on policy with the Walsh administration.

● IT WAS a year of lively negotiations for film labor. In late January, it was announced that the American Federation of Musicians had signed a new four-year agreement with all major companies except RKO and Republic calling for a five per cent wage hike. RKO and Republic the following month signed new one-year contracts providing for new guarantees and wage increases on a sliding scale.

In June, President C. Petrillo of the AFM of the Federation's convention urged musician-exhibitor cooperation to return musicians to film theaters.

A five per cent wage increase highlighted a new contract signed on the Coast in January by the Publicists Guild and major studios. A similar increase, together with improved working conditions, marked a revised agreement negotiated by the Screen Extras Guild with the studios. The agreement, approved in April by the Guild, runs to Jan. 2, 1958, but provides that it may be reopened on Jan. 2, 1956.

● IN LATE NOVEMBER, the Colosseum of Motion Picture Salesmen at its Chicago convention voted to re-open its contract with distributors, and as the month ebbed, it was announced that the Screen Directors Guild and the AMPP had formalized a new contract which, in addition to providing for substantial salary increases, embraced a pension plan for senior directors, assistant directors coming under the new industry pension plan. The SDG contract extends from Jan. 2, 1955 to March 12, 1958.

On Dec. 20, it was announced that the distributors and IATSE had agreed upon a new two-year contract covering the country's exchange workers represented by the Alliance's "F" and "B" locals. The first contract on a national basis to be negotiated collectively, it provided for a $5.50 weekly increase, and a cut in the work week from 40 to 37½ hours, estimated to increase distribution costs $2,000,000 annually.

● THE IMPACT OF TELEVISION upon Hollywood was sharply defined in reports presented at the annual meeting of the Screen Actors Guild in Hollywood on Nov. 12. They established:

1. Seventy per cent of the Guild's Class A members now average nearly as many working days in TV and commercial films as they do in theatrical films.
2. Class members worked 46 per cent of the time in TV and 54 per cent in theatrical film production in the period from Jan. 1, 1953 to June 30, 1954.

● OTHER MORE IMPORTANT 1954 labor developments embrace these:

In late January, the Association of Film Craftsmen voted affiliation with the Hollywood chapter of the National Association of Broadway Employees and Technicians, thus for the first time giving the CIO a toehold in Coast studios.

Tom O'Brien, M.P., general secretary of Britain's NATKE, and a foremost British labor leader, visiting the United States in August, proposed, first, the establishment of an International Labor Council, and later, addressing the IATSE convention in Cincinnati, urged Anglo-American industrial unity . . . and an agreement permitting production of more telepix in Britain for American exhibition.

The AFL Film Council in Hollywood earlier in May, had concerned itself with the effect upon American employment of foreign telepix production. O'Brien went on to Hollywood and addressed the Film Council, warning that its press releases on "runaway" film production abroad provided grist for the Communist propaganda mill.

In September, Richard F. Walsh was reported as proposing labor representation when foreign film agreements are negotiated. The MPEA and other associations were discreetly silent.

As November ended, the SAG sought stricter application by the U. S. Immigration and Naturalization Service of regulations governing the admission of alien actors to perform picture work here.

XIV. Necrology of 1954

¶ DEATH in 1954 again took from the industry scene many who had contributed much to the motion picture's development and continuing prosperity through the years. High on the rolls of those mourned, in the order of passing are the names of—

HERE IS A TRUE

Christmas Story

(Reprinted from The Hollywood Reporter, May 5, 1953 and many other magazines and newspapers since.)

ON LAST Christmas Eve afternoon a black haired gal with a lot on the ball and more faith than Hollywood ever dreamed of walked into the Screen Directors Guild office. Their annual Christmas party was in progress. She had phoned this office a few minutes before and a man's voice had answered. When she asked for an immediate appointment with Mr. Morry Abrahms, the man's voice in turn asked her, "Are you Santa Claus?" She had laughingly replied, "Yes, I am Santa Claus!" She could hear the laughter of many voices in the background as the man's voice said, "Well come on over Santa Claus! The front door is locked but the back door is open."

So she entered through the back door and found a large group of people celebrating there. At the sight of the young woman everyone laughed hilariously, for after her call a game had been invented which consisted of the merry-makers describing what Santa Claus would look like, and if she would be known or unknown. She turned out to be a complete stranger to all of them and was armed with a thick folder of papers and a corporation seal. At the sight of the corporation seal, Mr. Joseph Youngerman and Mr. Morry Abrahms of the Screen Directors Guild laughed with amazement. It was the first time anyone had ever walked into their office to sign a basic agreement with them, and insisted on making the contract legal by sealing it with a corporation seal. Her fresh, energetic and amazing force hit the room like a bomb shell. She told them why she was there and as she spoke, somehow her story seemed to especially fit the Christmas spirit which filled the room.

When Mr. Youngerman and Mr. Abrahms heard her story they were so impressed with her faith in the impossible thing she was attempting to do, that before she left, they signed a basic agreement with her for making one of the most fantastic movies ever dreamed up. The story about the fantastic movie is this: On Thanksgiving morning, four short weeks before she walked into the Screen Directors Guild office, her father, Mr. M. K. Marlow, had given her an impossible challenge.

> "If you show me how much you know about the motion picture business by making a feature length picture under fifty thousand dollars, and use only union men while doing it, I will turn our ranch at Laveen, Arizona, into an outdoor studio and we will go permanently into the motion picture industry."

Lea Knox Marlow took her father up on his seemingly impossible challenge, and moved into Hollywood like a whirlwind. First she created a story which she felt had a chance to get finished under fifty thousand dollars. She made two neighboring ranch children, Jody Johnston and Jules Serio, into deaf and dumb characters because she could not afford to have them talking. She titled the story "The Phoenix Bird." Next she signed a basic agreement with every union in Hollywood. At the end of four weeks from the time she had made the deal with her father, she had written the story, set up all the mechanical production, recorded her background music with only two musicians in a three-hour minimum ad lib session. The resulting music was so powerful and strangely beautiful, that those who have heard it say it sounds like it came from another world; she hired a top flight I.A.T.S.E. crew, and started shooting at her ranch in Arizona January fifth, on a six-day shooting schedule.

By the end of six weeks from the day on which her father issued his challenge to her, Lea Knox Marlow had completed shooting "The Phoenix Bird." When it was all over she discovered they had shot enough good film for two movies—all in the new Eastman color. So, with her dramatic writing sense she created another story from the additional film and entitled it "A Salesman of God." With her faith, lots of hard work, and even editing the rough cuts herself, she miraculously managed to stay under her fifty thousand dollar budget, and had gotten two films from the making of one, to boot.

After she had won the challenge, Lea Knox Marlow told her father that if it had not been for the help of the wonderful union people, she could never have accomplished her mission. She was especially grateful to Mr. Youngerman and Mr. Abrahms of the Screen Directors Guild, Mr. Zeal Fairbanks of I.A.T.S.E., Mr. Herb Aller of Photographers Union, Mr. Ollie Alberti, and Mr. Ward Archer of American Federation of Musicians, Mr Lloyd Richards, Mr. Grayson Rogers, Mr. Elmo Williams, Mr. John Livesley, Mr. Joseph Biroc, Mr. Edward Fitzgerald, Mr. Gene Farrel, Mr. David Kline, Harpist Kathryn Thompson, Flutist Sylvia Rudiman, and Mr. Charles Leeds of Filmeffects for their good hearts and invaluable assistance.

This is the story of the beginning of a ten million dollar corporation, M.K.M. Motion Pictures, Incorporated. Mr. M. K. Marlow, Kentucky Banker and owner of a great coal corporation with a number of coal mines as well as the owner of many other varied enterprises, is Chairman of the Board. His daughter, Lea Knox Marlow, is President-Treasurer, Mr. C. S. Leeds is Executive Vice-President and Mr. Thomas Loyd Corbin is secretary.

Permanent headquarters for M. K. M. MOTION PICTURES, INC., is at their Ranch Studio at LAVEEN, ARIZONA

AND HERE IS THE WOMAN

it happened to LEA KNOX MARLOW

TO QUOTE A RADIO NEWSPAPERMAN:

"A new star is rising on the motion picture horizon. The George Bernard Shaw producer, Gabriel Pascal, claimed he discovered her. Her name is Lea Knox Marlow, but she should be called "The Female Orson Welles." She is like DUZ. She just does everything there is to be done in making a motion picture. She has just finished two remarkable movies called "The Phoenix Bird" and "A Salesman of God," for M.K.M. Motion Pictures, Inc.

Keep your eye on this fantastic woman. She performs sheer magic."

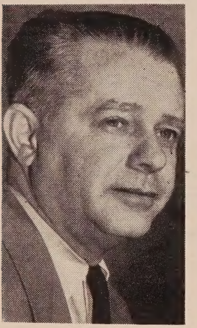
INDUSTRY STATISTICS

By WINFIELD ANDRUS
Managing Editor, THE FILM DAILY

THE DIFFICULTY of securing statistical data on the motion picture industry has been a source of distress to the industry press and others in the business for many years. Plans for the securing of such information have been drawn up time and time again, and just as regularly permitted to expire.



ANDRUS

However, THE FILM DAILY YEAR BOOK annually has gathered what its editors consider the most reliable of the estimates circulated each year, has published these and further estimates made after consultation with industry authorities. The following data and charts, therefore, represent the most informed thinking of a group of spokesmen representing all facets of the industry.

Grateful credit is acknowledged to the Motion Picture Association of America, the Association of Motion Picture Producers, Motion Picture Export Association, the U. S. Department of Commerce, Sindlinger & Co., and many others.

COLOR PROGRESS

By LOUIS PELEGRINE

Staff Writer, THE FILM DAILY

LAST YEAR as the new processes, which sought to invest motion pictures with the greatest possible degree of box office power, grew in dominance in the industry the dependence on color as a business stimulant became more pronounced than ever.

Under the circumstances it was no surprise that the industry should find its facilities for turning out color prints strained to the limit. Although the laboratories bent every effort to meet the situation, some of them expanding their facilities, complaints of a print shortage rose from the ranks of exhibition. Twentieth Century - Fox made a special effort during the year to break the CinemaScope print bottleneck in the hope of satisfying the demand for its product.

PELEGRINE

At the beginning of this year new efforts to satisfy the increased demands for color prints were disclosed. Warner Bros., 20th-Fox and M-G-M were three of the major studios that took measures to increase their color processing capacity. There were expectations of boosting their joint output 3,000,000 feet weekly. M-G-M succeeded in raising its overall capacity from 1,300,000 to 2,800,000 feet a week.

Efforts to solve the print problem progressed to the point where Dr. Herbert T. Kalmus, the president of Technicolor, was able to report at the end of September that the color-print situation was definitely starting to improve.

He let it be known that his company was doing "everything that is possible to do in a practical way to help solve the print shortage." Technicolor's efforts to this end were applied chiefly to research designed to find out how the problem could be licked and to modification of equipment to meet the demand for color prints. The great variety of print demands stemming from the appearance on the market of so many different processes was said to account for the difficulty.

Technicolor was revealed by Kalmus to be spending "large sums" on the installation of "modified equipment" to meet these demands. The company undertook to modify its equipment in many places in order to be able to produce Technicolor imbibition prints from various kinds of negatives, these prints being "capable of high-grade Technicolor quality on large screens."

The slowdown in production that developed in the first half of the year as producers sought to make up their minds about the new processes affected the amount of footage processed by Technicolor in 1954. In the second half of the year, when the film companies were in a better position to know what they wanted to do, Technicolor started to make up the loss sustained during the first six months.

The favorable showing made by Technicolor in the third quarter of 1954 was viewed by Kalmus as an indication that the firm had turned the corner and "successfully adapted its improved manufacturing technique to the new requirements, including Cinerama, CinemaScope, VistaVision and other large-screen theatrical presentations."

Noting that "the research and development departments of Technicolor continue to be unusually active," Kalmus held out prospects of "still further improvements" in the months ahead.

The production of Paramount's "White Christmas," the initial picture to be turned out in the VistaVision process, marked the use for the first time of a new method of manufacturing improved 35mm. Technicolor dye transfer release prints. Employed in the process is an eight-perforation negative; that is, two ordinary motion picture negative frames exposed in place of one moving horizontally through a modified black-and-white camera. These prints call for no special projection lens in the theater.

The Technicolor organization took on the task of building independently a number of eight-perforation (lazy eight) cameras for Paramount's VistaVision process. The cameras were modifications of Technicolor's own regular three-strip machines.

It was announced last year that color by Technicolor would be employed in all VistaVision pictures made by Paramount.

COLOR PROGRESS

The year witnessed the start of construction on Technicolor's French plant in Joinville, just outside of Paris. The plant was expected to have an annual capacity of at least 70,000,000 feet of positive release prints, production of which was set to begin "some time in 1955."

Further improvements in the photographic characteristics of Eastman color negative and print films, as well as of the intermediate films, were achieved in 1954. The year saw the use of these films in large volume. It was expected that yet further improvements would be realized in 1955. The arrival on the market of new color products in the 16mm. field was viewed as a possibility by Eastman.

Technological advances in film manufacturing and volume production made it possible to reduce the price of 35mm. Eastman color print stock from $41.50 per thousand feet to $39 and that of 16mm. stock from $27.50 to $25.50.

Consolidated Film Industries, a division of Republic Pictures Corp., which during 1954 emerged as one of the largest processors of 16mm. and 35mm. color motion picture film in the world, continued its expansion program with the adoption of new and faster methods of handling and the installation of new types of equipment. The company operated under a program calling for constant improvement and expansion of facilities at the East Coast laboratories in Fort Lee, N. J., and in New York, as well as at the West Coast plant.

Consolidated scored a "first" in 1954 when its laboratory in Hollywood became the first there to offer 16mm. Eastman color. A and B roll printing of 35mm. Eastman color negative is incorporated in the new optical reduction method which was claimed to yield 16mm. Eastman color prints of superior quality.

The Trucolor process also was improved upon during the year. Republic's dependence upon it was indicated by the fact that the studio had come to utilize the process for the bulk of its big-budget productions.

A new Ansco color negative appeared on the market at the beginning of 1955. The film was credited with possessing "finer grain" and giving "higher definition." An improved type 16mm. reversal color printing film the outstanding characteristic of which was said to be "high fidelity of color reproduction scale" also was introduced early this year.

Ansco enjoyed the distinction of having its process used by M-G-M in a number of the studio's top productions last year. Among the pictures were "Brigadoon," "Seven Brides for Seven Brothers" and "The Student Prince."

In 1954 Ansco found itself compelled to increase processing facilities at its Union, N. J., laboratory to double the capacity and provide quicker service as a result of growing demand for prints made on its color duplicating film, Type 238, by contact and reduction.

When 1954 began the De Luxe Laboratories had a very small capacity for the processing of color films. By the end of the year the company was estimated to have increased nine-fold the capacity of its New York plant for printing and developing color prints.

De Luxe opened a plant in Los Angeles as 1954 bowed in. It also set up a West Coast division for the processing of color negative color prints, as well as for the handling of magnetic striping and stereophonic printing. This was followed shortly by the beginning of a magnetic striping and stereophonic print recording in New York. De Luxe announced that it was further expanding its color plant in New York in the hope of doubling the capacity by early Spring.

From DuPont came promise of a new color process providing for direct contact printing. The process was reported to be similar to Eastman's. A number of the major studios extended use of their facilities to DuPont for work tests. The company disclosed as 1955 opened that the new color film was "near ready." However, DuPont was unable to set a timetable as to when the film would be commercially available, although there were expectations it would arrive on the market around the middle of the year.

A new negative and positive film base with characteristics held to provide advantages in color work was expected to be placed on the market in commercial quantities by DuPont simultaneously with the introduction of the new color process. Bearing the trade name "Cronar," the film was described as tougher, clearer, lighter, thinner, more durable and possessed of greater flexibility than standard stock. That its tough plastic base renders it nearly proof against the effects of moisture and temperature changes, with shrinkage and expansion minimized, was another claim made for the film.

Expansion of its 16mm. Pathecolor processing operations and entry in the commercial field were announced early last year by Pathe Laboratories. While Pathe had been processing color for three years, it was only at the end of 1953 that Pathecolor was perfected.

TAX FIGHT AHEAD

By WYNN LOEWENTHAL
Film Daily Staff Writer

WHEN THE SWIFT INFLUX of a variety of new projection processes had the exhibitor literally reeling last year, he began to feel along with Ben Franklin that the only things "we can be certain of are death and taxes." By the year's end theatermen in at least one city were more sure of the latter eventuality. This year may see the entire industry fighting to stave off discriminatory imposts of all sizes and shapes.

LOEWENTHAL

Unless the proper action is taken, the expected industry prosperity of 1955 will be marred by states and municipalities seeking to obtain through taxes the monies being earned by a lately revived motion picture business. A business that needs every penny it can raise to spend on improvements, modernization and promotion in the face of stiff competition from other entertainment media.

Faced with increased operating costs as well as, in many instances, mismanagement, American communities have already begun to initiate tapping the industry for revenue by levying discriminatory taxes.

A brief review of the situation prior to 1955 is advisable here.

In 1953, Congress passed the Mason Bill and the following year, on Mar. 31, President Dwight D. Eisenhower signed into law the measure which ended the Federal Admission tax through 50 cents and reduced the rate on higher admissions from 20 per cent to 10 per cent.

The tax was revised for only one reason: to bring relief to a distressed industry that was being helped out of business by the operation of the 20 per cent tax.

Rep. Daniel A. Reed, New York, summed it up succinctly when he said the tax had reached the "point of rapidly diminishing returns" and that it must be remembered that "the adverse effect of the admission tax on motion picture theaters sets off a chain reaction which reaches all the way back to the production and distribution of films, and the corporations and employes involved all along the line are adversely affected."

Some wary Congressmen were reluctant to slash the tax, pointing out that the states or cities would seek these monies for themselves. The Council of Motion Picture Organizations had led the campaign for tax relief. Its campaign co-chairmen, Pat McGee, Col. H. A. Cole and Robert W. Coyne, special counsel, estimated that their victory had placed $122,250,000 at the disposal of the nation's theaters and would free 51.7 per cent of all houses from the Federal tax.

Only seven weeks after the Federal tax relief, a local government announced its plans to seize upon the sorely needed funds which Congress and the President had made available.

On May 20, 1954 it was revealed that New York City's Board of Estimate was planning a five per cent amusement tax. Some prominent industries were stunned. Had they not helped Mayor Robert Wagner to gain office! The tax was passed on June 3 by the City Council by a 22 to 3 vote. It was signed by the Mayor on the 20th, to be effective July 1.

One of the most frightening aspects of the new levy is that it was strongly opposed by a united front of exhibition, local merchants and organized labor. Close to a million and a half signatures were obtained from theater patrons protesting passage of a ticket tax.

Exhibition was not the only branch of the industry to be further taxed in New York.

In Sept. a new ruling on the city's use tax was issued calling for a three per cent tax on rawstock and laboratory processing charges on negatives used to make exhibition prints.

In Albany, Sen. Fred Morritt introduced an ambiguously worded theater ticket tax bill which would have the revenue from the levy earmarked to meet New York City's transportation deficit.

Morritt soon afterwards amended his bill to apply only to entertainment tickets priced at $10 and above, preseumably from pressure brought to bear by alert theater interests.

Following passage of the city's five per cent tax law, the exhibitors swiftly brought legal action against the new law. At this time, they have made strong headway on one count—a major fraction clause—which brings the tax above the five per cent limit of the State Enabling Act. If finally determined illegal, the decision would also upset the city's sales tax.

Rep. Emanuel Celler (Dem.-N. Y.) may have seen the handwriting on the wall last June, when in a fiery speech on the exhibitor's behalf in City Hall, he warned New York's Mayor Wagner that the city, in attempting to levy a ticket tax, was "opening a Pandora's box."

It was not long after the city's tax law went into effect that Rep. Celler revealed that several Congressmen, irate by the city's move, were threatening to vote withholding of Federal aid in an amount similar to the revenue the municipality received from the tax. The Congressmen had not given the industry tax relief for the city to nullify their intentions!

The tax threat cannot be ignored by those in areas now without amusement imposts. There are individuals and groups actively working to bring about these taxes in every American hamlet.

One powerful group, the American Municipalities Association—claiming membership of 12,000 communities, is urging city authorities to employ the amusement tax.

It has been shown that since 1946 more theaters closed in cities with local admissions taxes than in municipalities where no such levies were imposed.

Furthermore, theater grosses also seemed to be lessened in areas where there are no local taxes.

What steps can the industry, especially the exhibitors, take against new levies being imposed on the state and city level?

Despite the failure of the all-out effort to block the tax in New York City (a unique situation in that the issue was a "political football") the method of defeating a tax bill when it is in the hands of the lawmakers—or still better, even before such a measure is introduced, remains the proven and most effective manner of halting further discriminatory taxes.

With COMPO ably handling the Federal front, let us examine the amusement tax on the state level. The state, as the reader must know, may either impose its own amusement levy or grant taxing authority to municipalities.

In the industry war against taxes, the best defense is a strong offense. The COMPO taxperts do not believe in the "let sleeping dog lie" theory. Veteran observers know that the legislators are always aware of admission taxes and that the belief that talk about a tax will bring it about is plain political ignorance.

According to strategy outlined by COMPO, industries should, before there is even mention of a tax, find out from their Governor and Legislature what their plans are with regards to amusement levies. COMPO suggests the formation by motion picture forces within the state, of a state tax committee and a committee in each of the state's Assembly (or lower House) districts.

Written or oral pledges in the presence of trustworthy witnesses should be obtained from Assemblymen and Senators. In its national campaign, COMPO found that maintaining a cross-indexed pledge file was highly valuable.

Tax bills should be fought and followed—if necessary—from the Assembly Ways and Means Committee to the Rules Committee, Assembly, Senate and finally the governor.

On the municipal level, the amusement tax bout is fought in a similar fashion but the arena is smaller and the people involved more concentrated.

Operational procedure calls for: 1. An all-branch industry meet; 2. Organization of a public relations committee; 3. Establishment of friendly contacts with the press; 4. Enlisting the support of local merchants, Chamber of Commerce and civic groups; 5. Obtaining pre-election pledges from all candidates for city office.

If the above steps fail, and the bill is introduced, exhibitors should personally visit all officials to obtain pledges; seek editorial support from local newspaper; circulate anti-tax petitions among patrons and present them to the Council before action is taken on the measure, and use the theater lobby for anti-tax displays.

There is also the possibility under a plan offered last summer, that states would be asked to repeal state income tax laws if they wish exclusive rights to collect admission taxes and other excise taxes.

In this case, states not currently levying a ticket tax would be forced to do so to compensate for lost revenue.

The plan was formally recommended to the U. S. Chamber of Commerce and the Hoover Commission on Government Reorganization. Roswell Magill made the study for the Committee on Federal-State Relations of the commission headed by former President Herbert Hoover.

The Hoover Commission was told how a number of cities also derive revenue from this source, and that there were indications of increasing use of this tax at the local level.

Stating that the Federal Government's revenue from amusement taxes made up only a little more than one per cent of the Federal budget, and if this source were made available exclusively to state and local governments, encroachments on sources more properly Federal, such as the income tax would perhaps be halted, Magil believed that the admission tax "could develop into a significant contributor to state and local revenues."

At this writing, no action has been taken on the Hoover Commission report.

The

in

Universal International

bigger than ever...

U benefit, when you need it most, from U-I's continuing policy of delivering a steady flow of product carefully made with but one thought in mind—to deliver a steady flow of customers to your boxoffice.

U profit by U-I's expanding use of national magazines to pre-sell its product to your patrons.

U gain by U-I's tremendously expanded program for television advertising which for the first time includes the use of TV as a national advertising medium for motion pictures.

U reap the constant rewards of U-I's continued concentration upon exploitation of pictures in what has come to be known as "the Universal manner."

U receive fresh box office impetus from U-I's new screen personalities developed through its unique school for talent.

U enjoy the tangible results stemming from U-I's credo that a big picture is one that makes big profits.

Universal International . . . .

There's a LOT behind
U-I

In The BEGINNING

There Was ENTERTAINMENT

Who had a sixth sense?

Who increased or killed a laugh?

Who was the assassin of "Rigor Boredom"?

Who was trained in building "Film Suspense"?

Who has been likened to a film architect or engineer?

Who assembled the picture with beauty, grace and precision?

Who was well acquainted with "face - on - the - cutting - room - floor"?

Who selected, shortened, lengthened and blended the whole into entertainment?
